EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THE Protectionist idea is growing in the Pacific coast states.

REV. HENRY WARD BEECHER was 70 years old on Monday, June 25.

ALL the Republican county conventions so far held in Iowa, fourteen in number, have declared for prohibition.

ILLINOIS will try the experiment of high licenses for the sale of liquors, provided the courts don't declare the law unconstitutional.

THIS would be a lonesome country if it didn't have so many statesman who are always willing to indulge in learned political prophecies.

CHARLES EMORY SMITH says he is not a candidate for the State Chairmanship. Ex-Governor Hoyt also declines. This leaves only Senator Cooper in the field, and he should have the position he filled so well last year.

IT is very interesting to see the militia of the South and of the North visiting and fraternizing with each other. The Continental Guards of New Orleans have just been on a visit to their brethren of the militia in Boston, where they had a grand time.

WHEN Sara Bernhardt passed through Hamburg recently on her way to Copenhagen and Stockholm, she had 46 trunks full of baggage, and waxed furious when the custom officers insisted upon examining the contents of every one to the very bottom.

AMERICA is becoming the dumping ground of Europe for her worst population. It is time that our Government endeavors to put a stop to this wholesale system of assisting emigration, which will otherwise soon fill our country with hordes of bad people.

THE Rev. Dr. McCosh seems to have no difficulty in raising funds for Princeton. Of the $200,000 needed to carry out his design for promoting philosophy there, $150,000 have already been promised, and another large sum has been given as an endowment for an art school.

THE Brooklyn bridge is not the most remarkable of its kind. The bridge at Langang, over an arm of the China Sea, is five miles long, has a roadway seventy feet wide and over three hundred arches, on each of which rests a lion twenty-one feet long made from one block of marble.

WHATEVER may be said of the shamefulness of the Star Route verdict, no one can truthfully say that the administration did not do its whole duty in endeavor to convict the conspirators. Justice miscarried, but only because the jury was not a fit one to try the case. The Government did its best, but without avail.

"OLD Kentucky, never tire" does not apply to the devotion of Kentucky Democrats to "tariff for revenue only." In fact, underneath the genuine Democratic loam and gravel there is a strong clay subsoil of protectionism. Mr. Watterson seems to have ploughed down into that lower stratum and we see the results. A more superficial culture of such soil would have been more prosperous in its results for the earnest successor of Prentice.

THE birthday of American Independence occurs next week. In the observance of a time honored custom the issue of the BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN, which would, in the ordinary course of events, be dated July 4, will be discontinued. The next issue of this publication will appear on the 11th of July. We hope our readers will celebrate the 107th anniversary of our National existence to the fullest extent their circumstances will permit.

What is a Professor?

On the above subject the Boston Commercial Bulletin has the following:

"In every college of any size in this country there is a professor of political economy; in nine cases out of ten a man who, although perfect as to theory, is almost of necessity utterly ignorant as to the practice of what he teaches. A lifelong student with no practical experience of buying or selling, from the mere fact of his being a mere student is not fitted to speak with the knowledge that can only come from experience on the actual workings of an economic principle.

"This is the reason that so many college professors believe and preach the doctrines of free trade which always must to the mere theorist be more attractive than the more apparently selfish tenets of protection. Feminine students of political economy are almost without exception as pronounced free traders as these theoretical professors, because the doctrine of free trade is a simple and beautiful theory which can readily be grasped and comprehended by a person utterly unacquainted with the demands of traffic and the channels of trade.

"Even in Harvard College, which is the fairest exception of what economic instruction should be, for its professors do not spend their time in public political harangues and writing diatribes for the newspapers, the text books used are English, the instructors are converts to the English idea, and discussion on the famous passage in Mill in favor of protection for infant industries in young countries is quashed by the remark: "I may say, gentlemen, that Mr. Mill has publicly stated that he did not regard the United States as one of these 'young countries;' this may obviate unnecessary discussion."

"Again and again have we called attention to the flimsy basis of fact on which these theorist's attacks have been based. One gentleman builds up a magnificent argument, for instance, against spool cotton, and the single stone on which the whole structure rests is the purchase of a spool of cotton of some grade or other, the price of which is repeated to this professor by a lady. No writer on even a third class journal would dare to hand an article upon a commercial problem to the managing editor based on so slight an authority. Another gentleman inveighs against the wicked protectionists and waxes furious on hidden corruption, starting from the stand-point that the tariff is not to be procured by an ordinary citizen of the United States. Another misstatement.

"It is a notorious fact that Americans, even those who have not had the advantages of a collegiate education, are most generous in their gifts and bequests to universities. Will not some of these munificent contributors towards American culture hesitate to support colleges whose representatives are doing their utmost to destroy American industries, not only by a refusal to give embryo citizens under their guidance a fair insight into the doctrines of protection but by verbal, written, public and private speeches, arguments and misstatements in favor of the Cobden Club of England, in favor of British free trade and against the diversified industries of the United States?"

The suggestion that the founders of professorships and contributors to their support should see that their benefactions are not perverted to the service of the propagandism of anti-American doctrines is one which we are much pleased to see endorsed by our able contemporary.

NATHANIEL T. ROCHESTER, who died at Saratoga a few days ago, was a son of the founder of Rochester, N. Y., and went there with his father when the city was laid out. He was eighty-one years old.

A Protective Tariff.

In the course of a strong argument in favor of protective tariff the American Protectionist says: In so far as the tariff is protective, it is levied upon articles of which the similars are produced in the United States. A strictly protective tariff would be entirely upon such articles, upon things in the purchase of which there would be a choice between the domestic and the foreign product. The buyer of the American product would not pay the tariff rate in his purchase, since as even Mr. Springer's wonderful figures concede, he buys for less than the tariff paid price, and in very many cases, as we proved last week, for less than the price of the foreign goods, ex-tariff, to borrow a broker's phrase. In competing products, such as protective tariff relates to, a person buys a foreign article because he likes it better, because he wants a luxury, or for some other reason than that it is an actual necessity to him. He could get along with the domestic article if he would. Hence, if an American buys a foreign-made object duty paid he does so as a matter of choice purely, and whatever duty enters into the price he pays voluntarily. Nothing is levied upon him, or forced from him at all. Consequently, protective tariff is not and cannot be an enforced tax upon Americans. But, say the Springerites, the price the American pays for home made goods is higher by reason of protective tariff, if not to the full extent of the duty, at least to that of a large portion of it. To which we answer, that this is not so in very many cases—so many as to make perhaps the greater portion in value—for instance, blankets and clothing, and that, as to others, price soon becomes reduced by the competition of our great markets to the lowest at which the articles can be furnished from our resources and without lowering our standard of labor and civilization—and that is the lowest price at which it ought to be sold here, tariff or no tariff, revenue or no revenue. What supreme nonsense it is to claim that our prices for iron, for example, are too high when our iron works are closing and our metal workers going out of employment!

THERE seems to be a strong probability that France may have to answer some heavy pecuniary demands from citizens of this country in respect to recent operations in Madagascar. The official reports state that the French factory at Majunga escaped injury, and that most of the American houses were equally fortunate. But most is not all; and when due allowance is made for the diplomatic tact unusually exhibited in such dispatches, is but fair to assume that some American properties suffered severely. This country is disposed to view with commendable equanimity any knocking about of other people's houses which may happen in conflicts which do not immediately concern its citizens, but when any of their establishments are broken up like egg shells it is to be hoped that American remonstrance will not be a mere matter of words.

A WAR is impending between the Central and Union Pacific railroads which promises better permanent results to the public than commonly follow such contests. The Union Pacific is preparing to extend its line to the Pacific coast. One route has been surveyed directly across Nevada and California, running through a rough and thinly settled country, but having the advantage of being many miles shorter than the Central Pacific. Two other lines to the coast are also under survey. It will be highly advantageous to the people of the Pacific coast if these corporations which have long acted in harmony shall be turned into competing rivals.

BLAINE will stump Ohio for the Republicans.

IT is very truly remarked by the Philadelphia Inquirer that in the work of educating the masses the state takes entire control, as a matter of right and duty to the children of citizens. For some years past our commonwealth has gone far beyond all others, and established a system of soldiers' orphan schools that blends charity with duty. As in the case of all such enterprises, mischief-makers became concerned with these schools, and reported various kinds of crookedness with such plausibility and vehemence that the legislature appointed a committee to investigate the management of the different establishments. Senator Eckley B. Coxe, the chairman, made a most thorough inquiry, leading all his associates in the hunt for irregularities, and although the most searching examination was made, the committee could find only five irregular or questionable admissions out of thirteen thousand, and some of these were the result of failure in the first instance to ask if the parents of scholars admitted were in destitute circumstances, a condition precedent to the admission of a scholar.

THE English are called a beer drinking people, the Americans have been called a whiskey drinking people; but it appears that, while whiskey drinking in England is rapidly decreasing, it is as rapidly increasing in the United States. The last report of the excise commission shows that the government revenue from the tax on beer, ale and spirits has decreased more than $25,000,000 in seven years. That is a much more gratifying exhibit to the the friends of temperance in England than is that made by the president of the Brewer's association of the United States, at the Detroit convention, to the temperance folk of America. That gentleman stated that the treasury had received from the tax on beer $2,432,977 in 1882 more than 1881. England is still ahead of us, not only in the aggregate number of gallons of beer consumed, but in the per capita consumption also.—Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin.

LONDON Truth puts in plain, blunt print the facts about Queen Victoria which have been newspaper gossip for years. The aging woman, who is to-day loved and honored by a wider, greater, more powerful people under her flag and ours than any human being since the days of the Antonines, is slowly sinking beneath the inherited ills of her family, the perilous isolation of her position and the sorrows of widowhood, which spread with darkness the days of the true woman in palace and cottage alike; but that her life will be spared and her end be peace will be the prayer unceasing of the English race.

THE tidal-wave vote of last year is a source of endless satisfaction to the Democrats. Whenever an election goes against them, or the divisions in their own ranks appear irreconcilable, they go back at once to the returns of the elections of 1882 for consolation. They look at them right side up and wrong side up and sideways, and then demonstrate to a nicety that there isn't the slightest prospect of the Republicans carrying the Presidential election next year. No Republican can have any objection to the Democrats coddling this delusion. It is cold comfort, to be sure; but it is better than none at all.

A NEW-HAVEN (Conn.) physician travelling last season in Germany was so much taken with a diminutive clock exhibited in a window, that he bought it to take home as a curiosity. His surprise may be imagined when upon opening it to wind it he found the imprint of the company, whose manufactory was within half a dozen blocks of his own home at New Haven.

Atmospheric Disturbances.

Astonishment is often expressed at the power of a tornado to lift not only men and animals, but trees and houses, and carry them long distances through the air. The tornado at Steubenville, in Ohio, on Monday, showed not only that it possessed this power to a remarkable degree, but that if it had occurred over the sea it would have formed a waterspout. When it struck the Ohio River, after pursuing a destructive course through the heart of the town, it raised a column of water a hundred feet into the air, although at that time its force seemed to be nearly spent. This power of suction possessed by a tornado is, however, not more wonderful than the leaping motion which the funnel-shaped cloud often exhibits. The passage of a tornado is so swift, and its effects are so stunning and confusing, that it cannot be regarded as surprising that trustworthy and careful observations of the phenomena of these storms are hard to get, and that consequently the meteorologists are only able to contrive theories of a very general nature to account for them.

THERE seems to be something contagious about horrors. Great fires, great floods, great cyclones come in groups. A few years ago there was a series of awful theatre fires, including the Brooklyn theatre, the Ring theatre at Vienna, the Opera House at Nice. Last year disastrous floods swept the Danube, Rhine, Adige, Po and the Ohio. A few months ago a succession of cyclones scourged the western states. Now comes a series of panics, including the Catholic school in New York, the Brooklyn bridge, the circus panic at St. Petersburg, and the Sunderland disaster in England, in all of which there were terrible losses of life. Worst of all, however, was the panic in England, which resulted in the killing of nearly two hundred children.

THE managers of the coming Exposition at Louisville, who have directed the preparations for that great enterprise with conspicuous energy and liberality and without resort to begging or bragadocio, hope hope to embellish the industrial display with a noteworthy collection of works of art. A fire proof building for their reception is now going up in the centre of the Louisville Park. The American Art Union will fill one wing of the gallery with paintings mainly by its own members, and there is reason to hope that the whole collection will be fairly representative of contemporary art at home and abroad.

THE announcement of the death of the Rev. James F. Wood, Archbishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Philadelphia, will be received with regret by the entire membership of the church within the diocese and throughout the United States. He was an active and zealous servant of the church, and his ecclesiastical life was one of unremitting devotion to its faith and works. Archbishop Wood was not only conscientious in the performance of the duties of his holy orders, but exercised a watchful care over the material interests of the diocese.

The Texas Siftings tells of a South western contemporary which under the head of "Nautical Intelligence" printed the item. "The Church of Rome has Created a See." Well, that is not a grain worse than what scores of Democratic newspapers all over the country are continually doing. They keep printing frantic appeals for the restoration of the Democratic party to power in 1884 under the head of Reform.

THE senate had scarcely come together when a resolution was introduced and passe not to take pay for the recess o twelve days. The House, however, found it difficult to agree to such conomic specimen of Legislatuon, out finally did so.

GENERAL NOTES.

Connecticut was the first State in the Union to coin money.

New Hampshire records one divorce for every ten marriages.

The average salary of Methodist minister in New England is $560.

The average elevation of North Carolina i 640 feet above the sea level.

The election in Connecticut this year is for a House and half the Senate.

Boston's public institutions cost $467,871.21 for the year ending June, 1883.

Four thousand tons of guano have been sold this year in one Georgia county.

Flowers are extravagantly used on dressy bonnets and hats of every description.

The New Hampshire Fish Commissioners have put 1,000,000 shad in the Merrimac.

Strawberries weighing seven-eighths of an ounce each have been grown in Delaware this year.

Eight Bedford (Mass.) girls fainted during the recent high school commencement exercises.

Christain county, Ky., raised, in 1882, 10,584, 350 pounds of tobacco and 5,180,800 bushels of wheat.

There are 1200 towns west of the Mississippi river without churches or regular preaching of any kind.

Three children have died in Brazil, Indiana, within the past two years from drinking concentrated lye.

There are more than 800,000 people in Ireland who speak Irish, and 100,000 who can speak no other language.

The Massachusetts senate, 35 to 7, killed the House bill to increase the salaries of legisla tors 50 per cent.

The oyster industry of Maryland, in all its branches, employs 25,000 persons and affords a living to 75,000.

Silk culture is attracting considerable attention in Kansas, where the worms feed greedily on Osage orange leaves.

Vermont was first called New Connecticut, and took its present name in 1791, when it was admitted into the Union.

Judging from receipts at Key West thus far, over 50,000 pineapples will be shipped North from the port of Key West this year.

Atlanta, Ga., has a chamber of commerce with a membership of 125, at $50 a year, and after July 1 membership will cost $100.

A bill has passed the Illinois Legislature which compels the erection of air and escape shafts in the coal mines of the State.

One year ago there were not over 200 people in Dickey county, Dakota. Now the population is from 4000 to 5000 and rapidly increasing.

Men quarrying flint in a wood near Elkton, Md., have, for some time past, been disturbed by showers of stone coming, apparently, from the sky.

Four thousand six hundred and thirty-one Boston people were married last year; the largest number in any month was in November, the least in March.

Russian men are, as a rule, handsomer than Russian women. The Russian woman has loud ways and a loud, unpleasant voice. She almost invariably smokes. Russia is the terrestrial paradise of the demi-monde.

The General Synod of the Reformed Dutch church of America has passed resolutions denunciatory of masonry and other oath-bound orders, and cautioning all churches of the synod to discourage their members from joining secret societies.

Many of the great English lawyers have been very uncultivated men. This was preeminently the case with Sir William Follett, the most brilliant advocate of the century. He knew nothing but law, to which he gave almost al his time when a student at Cambridge.

A married woman, who has had trouble with her female help, sends this receipt to the press: "Put all your old love-letters in a paste-board box in the servant-girl's room. A supply of old love-letters has been known to keep a girl contented in one place for three months at a time."

A peach grower at Palmetto, Ga., keeps clear of the worms which so often destroy peach orchards by keeping a colony of bluebirds, which eat nothing but bugs and worms. For about five years he has been raising and protecting these birds, and now has 500 of them. They do their work effectually.

General Beauregard is credited with the remark that he has observed a gradual decline in the negro race. They neglect their young and their old, and in those parts of the South with which he is familiar, there is a steady diminution in the number of blacks. This view of the matter is being strongly disputed

Mr. R H. Wadlow, a Brooklyn, Ga., man, after three years' hard work and study, has finally invented and patented a new method of making shoes. The entire uppers of these shoes are of one piece, with no seams that touch the foot. They are made with an adjustable instep and fastened with buckles of his own invention.

In Prussia duels are not tolerated except where there is legitimate cause for them. When one officer feels himself aggrieved by another, the question whether the cause of offence is one that necessarily involves a resort to arms is referred to a tribunal of honor. When a duel takes place in France, where gentlemen are very fond of this mode of arbitration, it is, in nine cases out of ten, the fault of the seconds not being sensible men of the world.

The Washington Star says there is at the Freedman's Hospital an old white man named Ilexus Tender, who is eighty-five years of age, and was a powder boy on the Lawrence at the battle of Lake Erie, fought by Perry, September 10, 1813. Tender was subsequently engaged in a number of battles on land, including the last of the war of 1812 at Lundy's Lane. Subsequently he served in the regular army, and was in service during the late war. Now the old veteran has to rely on public charity.

Poetry.

A LAUGH.

Behold how good it is to laugh,
A rousing, big, side-splitting laugh!
It snaps the bands of care in half,
And breaks ennui's fetters;
It stirs the winter of the mind;
It makes the heart's waste song inclined;
It frees the blossoms there confined,
And leaves man truly better.

I mean a laugh that is a laugh—
A roaring, good, old-fashioned laugh,
That can of round good-nature quaff
A foaming over bumper.
It clears the heart of troubles rife,
Roots up the thistle weeds of strife,
And lengthens out the thread of life,
And strikes disease a thumper.

I pity him who cannot laugh,
For his poor manhood needs its staff;
I dread—I shun—who will not laugh,
For he is more a beast by half
Than any four-foot creature.
And tho' the wise shall frown at this—
A bishop shake his gown at this;
And tho' the prude look brown at this,
I set a good laugh down at this—
The wine of human nature.

LIKE HIS COAT.

How much a man is like his coat;
He's often button-holed to vote;
He rips and tears when he is mad,
And goes on tears when he is bad.
From whole cloth all his tails are made;
When he gets fits he is half frayed.
He's dar ed and baisted by his wife,
Who sometimes cuts his thread of life.
He's often "short" of cash-mere, and,
If cuffed he shows his choler grand.
When he's worn out he wants a nap,
And sometimes he's not worth a wrap.
He needs much mending of his ways;
His sewing's more than ere he pays.
He oft has stitches in his side,
And when he's sold his wool is dyed.
He is bound over, too, to keep
The piece, which makes him feel so sheep.
A man who gets the sack will take
His sleeve at once. Nine tailors make
A man. One makes his coat, but none
Can make him pay unless it's dun.

A LULLABY.

Ho! dear little west winds, come over the lea;
I pray you speed quickly to baby and me;
Come croon your sweet lullabys softly and low,
The rustling of young leaves, the brook's rippling flow;

The lush of the waves as they break on the shore,
And dreamily mimic old ocean's deep roar;
The bees' drowsy tune set to murmuring rhyme,
The fairy-like music wee lily-bells chime.

Come sing to my nestling the songs you have sung
This eve to the birdlings in leafy nests swung,
Whose green, swaying cradles, high up mid the trees,
Respond to the touch of each gay, flitting breeze.

The birds and the flowers are hushed all to rest;
Now lull my bright birdling to sleep on my breast,
While God's holy angels from Heaven above
O'ershadow my darling with white wings of love.

Our Story Teller.

Lost—Five Dollars.

Nan Kendall held her pretty brown head on one side, and critically examined the picture which she had just finished.

The easel stood by the open window, through which the scent of lilacs was borne into the low old-fashioned parlor. Her box of color tubes stood on the floor beside the easel, and the palette and brushes, with the paint still fresh and odorous upon them, lay upon a small table near by.

"Yes," she said, with a self satisfied, dimpling smile, using the mahlstick to aid her as she enumerated the good points of her picture, "I think it will pass muster, mother, dear. Confess now that I manage those bits of sunshine and shade with the skill of an old master. And am I not represented as large as life, only more so?"

"And what shall you call it, dear?" asked Mrs. Kendall, a fair, brown haired widow, who looked very much like her daughter.

"'Under the lilacs,' I think. It doesn't look very modest, I suppose, to paint one's self, but in the dearth of models, I was compelled to do so."

"As if a prettier model could be desired," exclaimed Mrs. Kendall, with motherly pride.

Yes, it was a pretty model, and a very pretty bit of painted canvas. Overhead hung great bunches of the fragrant lilac blooms, framing an exquisite, smiling, girlish face. Her hand was stretched upward, and the loose sleeve had slipped carelessly back, disclosing the white, rounded arm. Her apron was filled with great, odorous lilac bunches, while she was just in the act of plucking another. Over all the sunlight streamed, warm, bright, golden.

"I shall go to New York with it myself," said Nan, "and make—oh, ever so much money on it, mother, dear. Then we shall have a new carpet, for this one, though almost hidden by rags innumerable, is undeniably shabby. And I shall get my piano tuned, and buy those new waltzes Hetty spoke of last week, and I am sure, I don't know what ail. I thank the fates that they have decreed old furniture to be very stylish and nice, for I'm afraid I won't get enough to buy anything new in that direction."

"Don't build too many air castles, Nannette," said her mother, warningly, "for you may be disappointed after all."

But brave little Nannette's hopefulness was not dashed in the least. She had worked so long on this picture, had been so pains-taking. Surely in the great city, ten miles away, there must be some one who would admire it and buy it.

Not quite a week later, Mr. Curtis Van Tassel sauntered listlessly into one of the down town cafes, toward dusk, and seated himself, with a dissatisfied sigh at one of the numerous small tables, covered with the whitest, softest damask, and glittering with silver. Business had been unutterably dull during the past week, notwithstanding the fact that it was early in spring and Mr. Van Tassel's affairs had suffered more than a little. Hence his unwonted perturbeation of mind. So preoccupied was he that he did not notice that he had a vis a vis, till coffee and rolls had been brought him.

The cloud lifted suddenly from his handsome forehead, and he glanced with deep interest at the girl opposite him—Nannette Kendall herself. Curtis thought it was one of the most beautiful faces he had ever seen, exquisite in its modeling, perfect in its contour. Her eyes looked sad and disappointed, as if ready to drop into tears.

Yes, Nan had met with a great disappointment. She had been unable to sell the picture around which her hopes had centred so long, and she must return home poorer than before. She had walked around the city all day, not quite despairing of success, until the approach of evening. Then, fearful lest her mother might be anxious, she had left her picture with a kind-hearted bookseller, who had promised to sell it for her if possible. She had decided to take the five o'clock train, but she had missed it, and now even her brave heart quailed a little at the thought of riding home alone at night on the cars.

Faint for lack of food she had entered the cafe, never dreaming she was guilty of extravagance unparalled, as it was one of the most fashionably expensive restaurants in the city. Poor Nannette! her head was aching, her nerves tingling, her eyes were hot with unshed tears of mortification and disappointment. What a relief it would have been if she could have indulged in a good, hearty cry. But even that little boon was denied her in this great, bustling, hurrying, noisy, selfish city. (The adjectives are Nan's own.)

Her repast finished, Nan put her hand into her pocket for her shabby little purse. The next moment she uttered an exclamation of terror and dismay. The purse and money were both gone. The waiter stood beside her with outstretched hands, a faint smile of incredulity on his smooth countenance. People who could not find their purses were by no means rare.

"But I have lost it!" faltered poor Nan, pale and trembling with genuine terror and distress, "or else some one has stolen it from me—my purse with $5 in it."

Curtis Van Tassel had heard every word. He looked at Nan critically, and at the same time sympathetically. The troubled look in the brown eyes was so painfully apparent that he did not for a moment share the waiter's suspicions. A brilliant idea came to him. Stooping down, quick as thought, he abstracted a $5 bill from his own wallet. Nan had not seen the action, but the quick-witted waiter had.

"I beg your pardon," Curtis said, quickly and courteously, "but I think this must be the missing bill. I found it beside your chair just now. Doubtless you have taken it out of your own purse, laid it beside your plate and then forgotten it. Very luckily I chanced to look down."

"How can I ever thank you, sir?" Nan exclaimed, while the servant gave Curtis a slight wink, and discreetly kept all knowledge of the little ruse to himself. So long as he was paid, it was no business of his from whose pocket the money came.

But a diligent search on Nan's part, aided by both the servant and Curtis Van Tassel brought no purse to light, and she was compelled to go home without it. How the money could be there and not the purse was a mystery she was unable to solve.

Only a day or two later Curtis was passing Harrison's bookstore when a painting in the window attracted his attention. Its execution was graceful and vigorous, but it was the central figures in it that he noticed. It was the very young girl that he had met at the cafe.

"I am a fool!" he thought as he entered and asked the price of the picture.

But for all that he bought it, paying $100 for it though Mr. Harrison declared the artist would consider $75 a magnificent sum.

"Very fine, indeed," Mr. Harrison said volubly, glad of a chance to make a bargain, even if it brought no money into his own pocket, "and a perfect likeness of the artist, Miss Kendall, sir. If she wasn't as poor as a church mouse the world would have heard of her long ago, I'll be bound."

Curtis thought so too, and wanted very much to know Miss Kendall's address, but he did not say so.

"My mother has long wished to have her portrait painted," he said, artfully, "but she wants it to be the work of a lady's brush. Do you think if I sent Miss Kendall her photograph, she would copy an oil portrait from it?"

"She would be only too glad, I guess, Mr. Van Tassel," said Mr. Harrison, effusively "and you couldn't get a lady better fitted for the work than she."

And Nan worked diligently and happily on her first order, never dreaming by what chain of circumstances the loss of her shabby purse had brought all this good fortune. She knew nothing about Mr. Van Tassel, except that he had purchased "Under the lilacs," and was so pleased with it that he wanted his mother's portrait from the same brush.

"I hope he will like it," she said on the very afternoon when Curtis Van Tassel was coming for the finished picture. "I have certainly done my best."

Mr. Van Tassel did like it, and he liked the little artist, too, so well that he came again and again, on one pretext or another. And before many months he had asked Nan Kendall to marry him, and she had answered: "Yes!"

"Nan," said Curtis, quizzically, one day, "did you ever lose $5!"

Nan stared an laughed.

"What do you mean Curtis? No; but I thought I did last spring," she said.

"Thought you did!" Curtis exclaimed "why didn't you really lose it?"

"Curtis, you're not the gentleman who"—Nan stopped.

"Yes," nodded Curtis Van Tassel, with smiling lips.

"I have sometime wondered where I had seen you before. Oh, it was monstrous of you to deceive me as you did. I don't think I can ever forgive you."

Virtue of Sleep.

Interview with a doctor in Atlanta Constitution

"I do not think a person should be waked at morning, and for this reason—when a man falls asleep he is in the shop for repairs, as the railroad men say. His frame and all its intricate machinery is being overhauled and made ready for the next day's work. The work of the previous day is being repaired. Nature is doing that herself. She knows what the tired frame needs just as she knows how to make the heart throb and send the blood coursing through the veins. Then she takes that tired frame, lays it down on a bed, surrounds it with the refreshing air of night, covers it with the soft darkness and lets the man rest. 'Tired nature's sweet restorer, balmly sleep,' visits him, and as the hours wear by his energies are renewed, his strength comes back, and finally, when morning breaks and the sun-light steals through the lattice, he opens his eyes and is himself again. Or if he is early to bed he awakes with the cocks' crowing. Now who shall go to that man's side an hour before he opens his eyes and say to nature, stand aside and let him get up? He has had enough rest. Well, nature will say, 'You can take him if you will, but I will charge him with an hour's loss of sleep and I'll collect it out of his bones and nerves and his hairs and eyesight. You can't cheat me, I'll find property to levy on.'"

"What would be the result if a man were to lose sleep habitually for a number of years?"

"You are a reporter?"

"Yes."

"You work how many hours a day?

"Fifteen. I go to work at 12 in the daytime and quit at 3 at night."

"How old are you now?"

"Say twenty-three."

"Well, when you are thirty in years you will be fifty-five in aches and ailments—older than I am. Go ask your morning paper printers how they feel! Are their steps elastic—are their eyes bright—are they fagged out—are they dragging out their lives? Put them beside men who do day work, and how do they compare?"

"You say a man ought to sleep all he wants to?"

"Yes, and so should a child. A baby should sleep with its mother; a child should be sent to bed early and be allowed to wake of its own accord in the morning. As for school girls, many a girl who has a dozen studies would be better occupied chasing butterflies, or training flowers, or galloping a pony, or dancing. I would prefer to have a daughter healthy, sweet tempered, sensible and beautiful, without Latin, algebra and grammar, than to have one ever so advanced in her humanities, with her health ruined, or perhaps lying under a marble urn in the cemetery, and as for me I would rather be able to earn $2 a day in the vigor and glory of perfect health than to draw rents from property for which I have exchanged the blessings of a sound constitution."

Two Ways of Looking at Things.

Two boys went to hunt grapes. One was happy because they found the grapes. The other was unhappy because the grapes had seeds in them.

Two men being convalescent were asked how they were. One said: "I am better to-day." The other said: "I was worse yesterday."

When it rains one man says: "It will make mud?" Another: "This will lay the dust."

Two children looking through colored glasses; one said: "This world is blue." And the other said: "It is bright."

Two boys eating their dinner; one said: "I would rather have something other than this." The other said: "This is better than nothing."

A servant thinks a man's house is principally kitchen. A guest, that it is principally parlor.

"I am sorry that I live," says one man. "I am sorry that I must die," says another.

"I am glad," says one, "that it is no worse." "I am sorry," says another, "that it is no better."

One man spoils a good repast by thinking of the better repast of another. Another one enjoys a poor repast by contrasting it with none at all.

One man is thankful for his blessings. Another is morose for his misfortunes.

One man thinks he is entitled to a better world, and is dissatisfied because he hasn't got it. Another thinks he is not justly entitled to any, and is well satisfied with this.

When a man is dismissed from employment he always has a good deal to say against his late employers. A man in fact, is like a gun. He makes a great noise when he is discharged.

Why He Did Not Dance.

From the "Sylvia Smitherson's Soiree."

Reine McCloskey looked up with a startled expression in her deep, fawn like eyes as these words reached her, and as her glance met that of George W. Simpson she saw, or fancied that she did, a look of haunting fear and nameless terror pass his face, whil the hand that held her own seemed to tremble slightly, and the finely chiseled lips seemed to quiver slightly as if in pain.

"You are ill," she said, placing her hand upon his arm and looking up wistfully at the face of the man she loved so well.

For an instant George did not reply. Then bending tenderly over her until his lips were almost touched by the coronal of sunny hair that her father had agreed to pay for next month, he kissed the fair, white brow that was upturned to him.

"You love me, sweetheart!" he asked. "Better than life," replied the girl, drawing still closer to him and stroking with a gentle touch his handsome face, which was hot and feverish—"but you are really not well. Let us go into the conservatory, where the air is purer."

"No," said George, "let me sit here beside you for a few moments. You have said that you love me, Reine. Is that love the mere ephemeral passion of a girlish fancy, or is it a true, deep, holy affection that will go on and on forever and ever, each day that dies on the horizon's purple rim making it more steadfast and abiding?"

For answer she placed her hand again within his own, and as she looked up to him he saw the beautiful brown eyes were suffused with tears. "You are cruel to ever doubt my love, darling," she said between the sobs that made her words sound like cider coming out of a jug—"far more cruel than you know. No matter what betides, I shall always love you, and your smiles and caresses be ever to me as the gentle dew that kisses into new life the parched and withered flowers of an August day. Nothing in the wide world can ever shake that love."

"Not even misfortune, or a bitter disappointment?" he asks.

"Nothing!" exclaims the girl. "But why do you ask?"—and her ruddy cheeks become ashen with a sudden fear, "what has happened?"

"Be brave, my precious one," he murmured, while Reine sits there in silence, every feature strained in intense agon, awaiting his next word.

"We are engaged for the next dance. I believe," he says.

"Yes" is the answer

"It is the racquet?"

"It is."

"I cannot dance with you, my darling."

"Why?" she asks, rising from the fauteuil, and looking at him in ghastly horror.

"Because," he replies, in low agonized tones, "You have stepped on my corn."

In a Whirl of Waters.

From the Ottawa Citizen.

On Tuesday morning a young French Canadian mill-hand named Narcisse Meunie, in Eddy's new mill at Hull, Quebec, had one of the most marvelous escapes from death on record. It seems that while attending to his duties in the lower part of the mill he slipped and fell into the water beneath. At this point the stream resembles a gigantic seething cauldron, but notwithstanding the warning of the rushing waters Narcisse, who is a powerful swimmer, struck out boldly for the shore. In spite of his efforts he was hurled down the waterway toward the Devil's Hole, where the stream enters the underground passage. Nothing daunted by the tremendous strength of the current, against which he was battling, Narcisse continued to fight for his life. At last he succeeded in getting near enough to the shore to clutch a projecting piece of rock. Fortunately for him some outsiders happened to see him clinging to the rock on the shore with the energy of despair, while the force of the current was tearing his arms out of their separate sockets, and came to his rescue. Had it not been for this he would inevitably have been sucked down into the Devil's Hole and probably never heard of again.

No description can give the faintest idea of the dangers of this spot, but after one glance at it—it seems incomprehensible that a human being should have been there and survived.

A New Snake.

A new snake, called the echis carinata, which is the first specimen of its race seen in England, and of which we have no specimen here, is attracting crowds to the Regent's Park, London, and dividing sensation with Oscar Wilde in his new sheared and common sense form. It is about a foot and a half long, and the color a dingy gray. It is the deadliest of created things, for it carries in its tiny head the secret of destroying life with the sudden rapidity of lightning and the concentrated agony of all poisons. The king of the asps is more dangerous than the cobra or the koralt, for it does not turn and run like the one, or flash into concealment like the other, but with fearless pluck gives fight, and pitches its 18 inches of length against any comer. A stroke of a stick will break it in two, or a stone will smash it, but such is its venomous malignity that it will challenge attack by every device in its power, staking its own life on the mere chance of its adversary coming within the little circle of its reach.

Mrs. Langtrey's Stockings.

I was making some purchases Thursday afternoon at a Broadway store, when my eyes fell upon the divine Lillie Langtrey at the hosiery counter. She was in search of a box of black hose and in considerable doubt as to the proper size. "If you will permit me to hold the foot of the stocking to your closed hand I can judge if the size is right," suggested the dapper clerk. The Lily glanced at him searchingly, to see if he was in earnest, and then, with all the coyness of a school girl, she drew her hand out of the little pocket in the side of her wrap, and extended it hesitatingly with a quiver in the fingers, let it drop suddenly at last into the clerk's outstretched palm. Her hand is certainly large, but is plump and pink and pretty, and the grace with which it was extended was worthy of Modjeska. You can't think of rose leaves while looking at the fair digit, but it will suggest pink sea shells and round balls of golden butter lying to cool in the clover that has grown up around the well curb. I was ungallant enough to glance at the box for the size of the hosiery, and the figures were "9½."

A Scheme to Make Women Brave.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

"Father," observed Melancthon Marrowfat to the old man one evening after his mother had gone out of the room, "I've been reading a good deal about panics lately and it seems to me that many of them might be avoided."

"There's millions in it if you can tell how, my boy," said Mr. M., shaking his head as if the problem were utterly incapable of solution.

"All it needs is," continued Melancthon, "for women to be brave."

"But they ain't brave," remarked his father firmly, "and how are you going to make them so?"

"Easy enough," returned the ingenious lad. "Give them mice for pets when they are children."

Color of Lakes.

Some lakes are distinctly blue; others present various shades of green, so that in some cases they are hardly distinguishable from their level, grass covered banks; a few are almost black. The Lake of Geneva is azure hued, the Lake of Constance and the Lake of Lucerne are green; the color of the Mediterranean has been called indigo. The lake of Brienz is greenish yellow, and its neighbor, Lake Thun, is blue. New York has both green and blue lakes. The colors of rivers differ yet more widely. The Rhone is blue and so is the Danube, while the Rhine is green.

The Chicago Regatta.

CHICAGO, June 20.—Sixteen of the noted oarsmen of the country have already arrived to take part in the regatta at Pullman on Friday and Saturday of this week, and they comprise one of the finest field of rowers ever assembled in this country for a contest. Hanlan, the world's champion, will contest in both single and double-scull races, his companion in the double-scull race being Lee. Hanlan is in fine condition, but it is asserted he will have to row to hold first place, as some of the fifteen are known to be in most excellent shape and are liable to press him closely, owing to the large number of contestants. Three preliminary heats in the single-scull contest will be rowed on Friday forenoon, commencing at 10 o'clock, and in case eighteen report, six men will appear at each heat. The first and second men in each of these preliminary contest, six and six in all, will decide the question of supremacy. At 4.30 p. m. of the same day and on Saturday at 4.30 will occur what is know as the "consolidation," open to all contestants of Friday who failed to reach the first, second, or third place. Then follows a double-scull, for which there are five entries, as follows: George Hosmer and John McKay, Hanlan and Lee, Weisgaber and Briceland, Plaisted and Parker, J. G. Gandawi and J. W. Kennedy. The oarsmen describe the Lake Calumet course as one of the finest, and, with good weather, there is a promise of an enormous attendance, as it is really the first great professional race which has ever occurred in the West. The railway companies are preparing to accommodate large crowds of people attending from the city.

Archbishop Wood Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—Archbishop Wood died at ten minutes past 11 o'clock to-night.

Archbishop Frederic Wood, D. D., was seriously ill for many months, but had recently been so much better in health that it was hoped his life might be prolonged for some time. About noon on Tuesday, however, his madady took a sudden turn for the worse. Professor Gross and Dr. Lopez were summoned and after a careful diagnosis Dr. Gross declared his grace's case hopeless. Blood poisoning from uræmia had set in and the illustrious patient could not survive more than a day or two at the most. When the true situation was explained to the archbishop he asked that the last rites of the church be administered to him. In the presence of the entire clergy of the cathedral he made his solemn profession of faith according to the Roman pontifical, after which the solemn viaticum and last unction were administered. His grace was born in Philadelphia, April 27, 1813, and is, therefore, in his 70th year. He was a bank cashier in Cincinnati when he was converted to the Catholic faith, by listening to Archbishop Purcell's argumentative sermons. He rose rapidly in the church, was very conservative and careful in his opinions and rulings, and was regarded as one of the most eminent men in the Catholic church of America.

O'Brien's Circus again Mobbed.

PITTSBURG, June 19.—A special to night from Johnstown reports a circus riot at that place last night. O'Brien's circus was performing in the town, when a number of rowdies undertook to run the show and began by cutting the ropes of the tent and slashing the canvas. The special officers engaged for the occasion, named Evans, Curtley, Thomas, and Robb, arrested some of the leaders of the hoodlums, when their friends to the number of 200 attacked the policemen.

Bricks, clubs, and stones were freely used, and great excitement prevailed. The employes rallied to the aid of the officers. Some of the officers were badly bruised and cut. The prisoners were rescued. Henry Markaby, Ed. Williams, and Humphrey Green, all negroes, were arrested this afternoon for having taken part in the assault on the officers. They were fined and held until a further charge can be made against them for resisting officers and exciting a riot. This is the same circus that was attacked by roughs in Maryland recently.

Assaulted by a Tramp.

JAMAICA, L. I., June 18.—Mrs. Henry Rotger was assaulted and dangerously wounded by a tramp this morning, and now lies in a critical condition. She was chopping wood in the rear of her house and was startled by her children crying. She rushed into the house and found a tramp chasing one of her children with a cleaver. She interfered, whereupon he turned upon her and struck her several blows on the head, fracturing her skull. The tramp was arrested.

Terrific Hurricane.

CHATHAM, Ont., June 18.—This afternoon a terrific hurricane passed over this section. It struck a bridge on the Erie and Hudson railroad, in course of construction across the Thames river, utterly destroying it. Five men were on the bridge at the time, all of whom jumped into the river. Two men were injured but not seriously. The loss falls on the contractors—a Buffalo firm.

The Last of the Coronation Festivities.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 18.—M. de Giers, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and other members of the Cabinet and members of the Diplomatic Corps here have started for Cronstadt to attend a grand dinner to be given them by Admiral Baldwin on board the United States flagship Lancaster. This will terminate the coronation festivities.

Miscellaneous Matters.

On Thursday morning an Italian emerged composedly from beneath the depot building at Milesburg and looked around to see if another June rain storm was hovering near. He saw a fearful looking object coming towards him which gathered him up in its capacious arms and threw him about a yard on one side of the road. Then he jumped up to see what had struck him and discovered the morning train vanishing in the distance. The engine was the object that had treated him so rudely and how he escaped uninjured is one of the things past finding out which are now happening so numerously in Milesburg. Italians are at present as "thick as hops" at Milesburg waiting to be transferred to their several destinations.

The same morning 18 persons sat down to the breakfast table together at Kohlbecker's Central City Hotel. This may be the case frequently for all that we are aware of, but we only mention it here because it seems to us a large number and is a convincing illustration of the popularity of the hotel. It is unnecessary to say that the breakfast was first-class, for all the meals served at this hotel are similarly excellent. As a caterer to the comfort of the public the proprietor of the Central City Hotel is one among a thousand.

Mr. W. T. Leathers, Jr., is erecting a very fine new residence in Mt. Eagle.

Hicks & Griffith's foundry near Captain Bayard's residence presents a scene of considerable industry, employing quite a large number of workmen.

The supervisors of Howard township have a white elephant on their hands. For a long time past one of the thoroughfares near Mt. Eagle has been in a dangerous condition owing to the fact that an archway beneath the road was caving in, leaving dangerous holes through which man or beast might disappear at any time. All passed over safely, however, until Mr. Jacob Leathers recently attempted to drive a valuable horse that way when the foundation suddenly caved in beneath the animal and it was precipitated a distance of several feet, breaking both of its fore legs, which rendered its death necessary. Of course, the supervisors are responsible for the damages and unless the road is repaired worse accidents may soon happen.

The Methodist church and parsonage at Milesburg have been repaired in very handsome style, the color employed being a pretty shade of drab. All is completed except the dome of the church building. The effect is to improve the appearance very materially. It is only another evidence of this congregation's prosperity.

Mrs. R. B. Curtin has removed her place of residence from the former very pleasant location to the residence near the rolling mill.

The usual spirit of activity is evident in and about Curtin's Works, and a superior quality of pig metal is being manufactured at the rate of fifty tons per week. Two and one-fourth tons of ore are used to each ton of metal, which also requires 110 bushels of charcoal.

Several bridges throughout the county are in what may be considered a dangerous condition, one in Boggs township, not far from Capt. Austin Curtin's residence, being especially so. It should receive the attention of the supervisors of Boggs township without further delay. It is no part of economy to procrastinate in making necessary repairs on such structures, as claims for damages by accidents come unexpectedly.

The Eagle Cornet Band held a successful festival in Roland on Saturday the 16th. The excellent band association assisted by both the Milesburg and Howard bands rendered delightful music, and the room in which the festival was held was thronged until a late hour. The net proceeds reached the handsome sum of $100.

—The force of employes at the glass works are now working every night between the hours of 9 p. m. and 6 a. m., for the purpose of escaping the great heat of the day. The works will close down in about a week from this date until September.

Twenty Years a Great Sufferer, from Constipation. Had swallowed a half-bushel of pills, and drank over a barrel of Cathartic and Laxative slops. Had tried every patent medicine recommended in such cases, and had been treated by all the very best physicians in Philadelphia, and was finally told by her consulting physicians that she was now too weak for Cathartic Medicine, or injections, and that she must die. She then took Manalin and was cured. See 31st page of the "Ills of Life." Get the book from your druggist, or address Dr. Hartman, Osborn, Ohio, for one.

He Repeats the Remark.

"Will you please repeat that remark, Mr. Mathison?"

Turning so as to look your representative squarely in the face, the head of the house of Soren Mathison & Co., Pharmacists, No. 1802 State street, Marble Block, Chicago, replied: "Yes, sir, with pleasure. My remark was that we consider PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, now called PARKER'S TONIC, the best article of its kind in the market. Our sales for the last six months tell the whole story and settle the question. The Tonic, like a good dinner, carries its own recommendation with it. It's bound to sweep the West like a prarie on fire. In cases of rheumatism, dyspepsia and liver and kidney troubles it scores successes and wins friends every day."

Hiscox & Co. beg to call public attention to the fact that hereafter PARKER'S GINGER TONIC will be advertised and sold simply under the name of PARKER'S TONIC. We make this change for the reason that unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers by substituting inferior preparations under the name of ginger; and as ginger is really an unimportant flavoring ingredient, we drop the misleading word.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine if the fac-simile signature of HISCOX & Co. is at the bottom of the outside wrapper.

Whiskey Burned.

PITTSBURG, June 21.—The Post's Belle Vernon special says that warehouses numbers two and three, attached to John Gibson & Son's distillery at Gibsonton, Pa., together with the contents—ten thousand barrels of whiskey—were totally destroyed by fire this afternoon. The fire started in warehouse number two from a lamp exploding in the hands of an employe named William H. Neil and before the flames could be controlled they had spread to number three and both were entirely consumed. Mr. Neil was badly burned but will probably recover. The loss is $200,000, on which there is a large insurance. The news of the fire spread quickly and soon people from the surrounding country for miles around were on the ground and doing everything possible to check the flames. But so far as the warehouses were concerned their efforts were unavailing. They succeeded, however, in saving a row of six dwelling houses. At about 5 o'clock a second explosion occurred and a large number of persons who persisted in getting close to the burning building were more or less injured.

A Commercial Gazette special says at 10 o'clock to-night the fire was under control. It was started by a bung bursting from a barrel of whiskey and scattering the liquor over the lamp. A number of other explosions occurred, the second one being so terrific that bricks, stone and burning whiskey were scattered in every direction, seriously injuring 15 persons as follows: Lewis McClure, George Amalong, John Amalong, Joseph Cooper, William Garrison, A. Hultimar, Chas. Boudon, Chas. Jones, E. Lewis, J. Gamble, B. Green. John Noble, R. J. Linton and son, George Smith, James Nixon and John Gaul. Most of these were scalded and burned and several had severe cuts and bruises on their heads and bodies. The buildings were of stone, four-stories high, two hundred and fifty feet long by fifty feet wide, with slate roofing and iron shutters. This is the second extensive fire within six months at Gibson's distillery.

Oarsman in the West.

PULLMAN, June 22.—Fifteen oarsmen were nominated for the preliminary race and placed as follows: First heat, Hanlan, McKay, Lee, Parker and Braceland; second heat, Hosmer, Plaisted, Riley, Teemer and Kennedy; third heat, Hamm, Weisberger, Gandaur, Elliot and Clayton. An audience of nearly five thousand was present to witness the first race.

The men took the water promptly at 10.30 in the following order: Hanlan, first; McKay, second; Lee, third: Parker, fourth; Braceland, fifth. The first quarter mile was pulled very evenly together, and at the first mile were well matched, with Lee leading slightly, followed singly by Hanlan and McKay while Parker had dropped two or three lengths to the rear, with Braceland between him and the leaders.

Hanlan passed the two-and-a-half mile buoy in eighteen minutes and two seconds, taking it very leisurely, with Lee closed in to one length, with McKay two lengths in his wake and pulling apparently very hard. Hanlan closed an easy finish with a handsome spirt, winning in twenty-two minutes and nineteen seconds, with Hasker second, McKay third and Braceland in the rear.

The men for the second heat were in position immediately after the first finished, Riley taking water full three seconds after the word had been given. The start was made in the following order: Riley, first; Teemer, second; Kennedy, third; Hosmer, fourth; Plaisted, fifth. Hosmer gradually increasing his lead by fully four lengths over Teemer, who was three lengths ahead of Riley and Plaisted, and they closed in that order, Hosmer finishing in 23 and 16 seconds; Teemer second, Riley third, Plaisted fourth, Kennedy distanced.

The word was given for the third heat at 11.40 in the following order: Hamm, first; Weisberger, second; Gandaur, third, Elliott, fourth and Clayton fifth. Gandaur sprang well to the front and passed the mile at thirty strokes, and full two lengths ahead of Hamm. Weisberger and Elliott abandoned the race.

The race between the remaining three men was contin ed sharply, Hamm turning the mile and a half buoy in ten minutes and forty seconds, Gandaur and Clayton 3d. Clayton again began to steer badly, but kept in toward the shore.

In the deciding heat, single sculls, the starters were Hanlan, Lee, Hosmer, Teemer, Gandaur and Hamm. Hanlan won in 22 minutes and 30 seconds. Hosmer was second and Hamm third.

Floods and Rain.

ST. LOUIS, June 23.—The Fish lake levee, which protects about fifteen square miles of rich farming land in American Bottom, on the Illinois side of the river, below East Carondelet, broke at 11 o'clock last night and about 10,000 acres of fine farms are now under water. The damage to crops and other property is estimated at $100,000. What is known as the Isabella bridge, on the Missouri Pacific railroad, spanning the creek about ten miles this side of Jefferson City, was carried away today.

The Madison dyke, between here and Alton, on the Illinois side of the river broke about 8 o'clock this morning in two places—one break near Mitchell, about twelve miles from East St. Louis, and the other further north, near the head of the dyke, not far from Alton. The crevasses are not very wide yet, but are growing rapidly, and the water is rushing through them at a fearful rate. It is expected the entire bottom north of East St. Louis, embracing 50 to 60 square miles, will be flooded. The farmers are leaving their homes as rapidly as possible many of them going to Alton and others to different points on the bluffs five or six miles back from the river. The destruction of crops and damage to farm property will generally be very great.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 23.—The severest wind and rain storm ever known here visited this city to day, lasting about twenty minutes and injuring a number of buildings and lumber yards and destroying shrubbery. It is thought that the storm was more serious northwest of here and fears are entertained that the wheat crop has suffered.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 23.—A heavy rain storm last night again broke the railroads leading South from this city. Nebraska city is cut off from all railroad connection. Near Atchison, also at Sterling, several small breaks have occurred.

Pistols at a School Exhibition.

GREENBURG, Ky., June 17.—At a school exhibition in Sulphur Well, Metcalfe county, Marshal Henry Beauchamp asked J. B. Winfrey and J. Price to desist from making a disturbance. Winfrey and Price opened fire on Beauchamp, who returned it. McFarlane, a bystander, was shot dead, Beauchamp was mortally wounded, a Miss Phillpot was struck in the cheek, and a negro who lived at Sulphur Well has not been heard from since the affray, and is supposed to be dead in the bushes, where he hid. Winfrey escaped injury, but Price is said to be badly wounded. No arrests were made.

Tornado in Missouri.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., June 21.—A tornado struck the southern part of this county, about fifteen miles southwest of here, last night, in what is known as the Low Gap country, and swept away 25 to 30 farm houses, spreading havoc in its track. Two men were killed and fifteen or twenty injured.

Ohio Democrats.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 21.—The democratic state convention convened at 10 o'clock this morning, with the largest crowd ever seen on a similar occasion in Columbus. Nominations were made in order. Trouble was reached on the first ballot, when Butler county was called, which had a divided delegation. It resulted in a call of counties to do away with the unit rule, which was carried amid great confusion and showed the strength of the leading candidates to be about even. The ballot was not completed till half-past one, and was as follows: Hoadley, 290; Ward, 261, Geddes, 77; Denver, 4.

After the call had been concluded on the second ballot some change began for Hoadley, and the greatest excitement prevailed, and a motion to nominate Hoadley by acclamation was carried. He had in the neighborhood of 350 votes, 319 being necessary to a choice. The convention then nominated John G. Warmick, for lieutenant governor, by acclamation.

Judge Hoadley soon appeared and accepted the nomination in a brief address, during which he reviewed his connections with the party, and said that although he had wandered at one time with the republicans to fight the battles of the colored race, the democracy was broad enough to receive him again. He esteemed it a great compliment to be nominated over more worthy candidates, and believed that the convention would place men on a platform whose leading principles were personal liberty, self-control in temperance matters, and a license system.

The work of nomination was frequently interrupted and delayed. In the meantime General Ward was brought in and made a speech in which he severely rebuked the party for failing to recognize his thirty years' services. Not to be daunted he announced himself publicly as a candidate for United States senator. A speech by Judge Geddes was in a somewhat different vein, though both pledged fealty to the party.

State Legislation.

HARRISBURG, June 22.—In the senate the Greer judicial apportionment bill was read for the first time, and the McCracken congressional bill passed second reading.

In the house the Crawford pay resolution was indefinitely postponed by a vote of 101 to 56.

Mr. Elsworth, of Crawford, opposed a resolution that the roll of the house be called daily except Sundays, and that the chief clerk be directed to certify to the State Treasurer the names of the members absent, except for cause. Not agreed to.

The governor vetoed the following bills to-day: Authorizing the Bedford Springs association to construct a road to the springs; relating to the paving of the streets in cities of the third class; authorizing the appointment of a corporation clerk in the State treasury.

HARRISBURG, June 21.—In the senate Mr. Greer reported favorably the old senate judicial apportionment bill, with the addition of an orphans' court judge for Berks county. The McCracken congressional apportionment bill was read for the first time. The senate refused to concur in the house amendment to the twelve days no pay resolution, striking out officers and employes.

In the house the McDonald judicial apportionment bill was read the first time. A concurrent resolution was offered by Crawford that the members receive no pay during the extra session.

Lafayette College.

EASTON, Pa., June 24.—The commencement exercises of Lafayette college began this morning with a baccalaureate address by President Cattell, whose text was "For I determined not to know any thing among you save Jesus Christ and Him crucified," I Corinthians ii, 2. In his remarks to the graduates he said that this was saying adieu not only to them but to their fellow-students, for owing to his failing health, which demands complete rest from enforced work and prolonged exertion, he must say farewell to his colleagues in the faculty and to the halls erected under his administration of twenty years. His remarks were not unexpected to his most intimate friends, for they knew that he had contemplated resigning the presidency for some time. It is probable his resignation will go before the board at its next meeting. This afternoon the semi-centennial anniversary of the Brainerd society was held and an address was delivered by Rev. George L. Shearer. This evening Rev. Charles L. Mills, of Chefoo, China, addressed the Christian brotherhood of the college.

Kidder-Huidekoper.

MEADVILLE, Pa., June 21.—This morning Miss Lizzie Huidekoper, the handsome and accomplished daughter of the late Edgar Huidekoper, was married to Mr. Henry P. Kidder, of Boston, senior member of the firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co., Boston bankers. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Rush Shippen, of Washington, in the presence of families only mostly interested, among whom where Mr and Mrs. Peabody, Mr. McGowan and the Messrs. Kidder, of Boston; General Huidekoper, Postmaster of Philadelphia, and family, and F. W. Huidekoper and wife, of Chicago. The bridal party started after the wedding breakfast on a special train, provided by President Jewett of the Erie Railroad, for New York, whence they will sail on Saturday for Europe for the summer. The train made the fastest time ever recorded on this route, the eighty-five miles being made in ninety-two minutes.

The Homœopaths at Niagara Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 22.—The American Institute of Homœopathy, now in session at Niagara Falls, has in attendance about three hundred prominent physicians from various parts of the country. Scientific and practical subjects connected with medicine are being discussed under the bureau of microscopy and histology. Fifteen papers were presented on antiseptic surgery in its various forms. An intercollegiate committee was established, consisting of two delegates from each of the eleven homœopathic colleges. The Bureau of Medical Education had an important report presented by its chairman, Dr. Egbert Guernsey of New York. It advocated, first the broadest and most complet. curriculum of study, embracing scientific truths of whatever schools second, that at least three, and better still four, entire years of study shall be considered obligatory; third the co-education of men and women in medicine; fourth, the importance of the most extensive chemical instruction.

A new homœopathic college recently established at Calcutta, India, was reported to the institute.

The following officers were chosen Professor J. C. Saunders, of Cleveland, president; Professor T. F; Allen, New York, vice president Dr. J. C. Burgher, Pittsburg, general secretary; E. M. Kellogg, New York city, treasurer.

Courtney's Time Beaten.

CHICAGO, June 23.—The sculling regatta on Lake Calumet this afternoon developed a prodigy in the person of young Teemer, the McKeesport oarsman, hitherto unknown, but who displayed his mettle by winning a place in the final struggle yesterday, although he failed to keep up with either Hanlan, Hosmer or Hamm, owing, it is now claimed, to his inexperience in rowing in rough water. To-day, in what has been termed the consolation race, open to all but the three leaders of the day preceding, he covered three miles in 20:14, thus lowering Courtney's best record of 20:14½, and upon which his reputation has been built.

The double scull race was called at 5.20 o'clock, with the entrees as follows and in the order given: Hanlan and Lee, Plaisted and Parker, Hosmer and McKay, Gaudaur and Kenuedy, and Weisgerber and Claytor. The story of the race is easily told. Hanlan and Lee led off at a forty-stroke, and were pushed for one mile by Hosmer and McKay, Weisberger and Clayton keeping well up. Plaisted and Parker dropped back early. Hanlan and Lee passed the mile and-a half buoy in 8 minutes and 42 seconds, and won the race.

Floods in Germany.

BERLIN, June 21.—The flood in Silesia was attended by a waterspout. A large part of the town of Hirschbarg is submerged, and the houses of adjacent villages flooded. The railway near Salsburn was washed away. A number of cattle perished.

Dispatches from Breslau state that within the last twenty-four hours the rise in the river Neisse, at a town of that name, has been most alarming, the water having reached the highest mark since 1829. The Evangelical school and church, two barracks and a part of the Postoffice are submerged. Disastrous floods are also reported in Bohemia and Moravia. The Danube is expected to overflow its banks shortly, as the river Inn and the mountain streams are rising rapidly. The quay at Linz is flooded.

Funeral of General Charles Ewing

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The funeral of General Charles Ewing took place at his late residence this afternoon and was attended by a large number of the friends of his own and General Sherman's family, including many of the most prominent officials in the city. The casket was draped with silk flags and a headquarters flag of the Seventeenth Corps stood at the head. General Thomas Ewing, Judge Charles Ewing and their families were present, with the widow, also Mrs. General Sherman and her family and Mr. and Mrs. Blaine. The procession moved from the house to St. Aloysius' Church, where the religious services took place, conducted by Rev. Father Murphy. The large church was filled. The burial was at Mt. Olivet.

Baltimore Democrats.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 19.—The contest between the factions of the Democratic party in this city took place this evening in the election of delegates to the city convention, which will have the management of the party for the year ensuing. The young Democratic association named candidates in all the precincts and the old ring or regulars also named candidates in most of the precincts. The result was the election of 100 of the association candidates, seventy of the regulars and of ten which were endorsed by neither faction. The factions are known as the Whyte, Hamilton and Gorman adherents, and the young Democratic association professes to ignore all and work for the general good of the party by honest elections.

Two Brothers Drowned.

ROCHESTER, Pa., June 18.—A sad drowning occurred here last Saturday evening. Two brothers, named John and George Tepold, aged 12 and 14 years, with some other boys, went in swimming at the wharf-boat. It appears that they were not good swimmers, and as the river is deep at that point, they were soon overhead. Another boy attempted to save them, but to no avail, and he came near losing his life but for some young men who came to his rescue. Grapling irons were soon put into use. About midnight one of the bodies was found. Men grappled all day yesterday, but to no avail. The coroner held an inquest, and the body will be buried to-day. The father died very suddenly six months ago.

A Balloonist Drowned.

FAYETTE, Mo., June 20.—E. L. Stewart, the æronaut, made an ascension here on Monday in an old and dilapidated hot-air balloon, which burst when it had attained a height of about two thousand feet. The balloon and æronaut came down with a rush, and both plunged into Bonne Femine creek and at once disappeared. Stewart's body was recovered at 10 o'clock that night.

...w Attractions at Cape May.

It will be welcome news to the lovers of seaside life to know that Cape May, always progressive in everything that could tend to the attraction, amusement and entertainment of the public, promises her guests of the present season a round of pleasing features far grander in their scope and by large odds the most fascinating ever instituted on the Atlantic coast.

On the beautiful lawn which surrounds the Stockton House, a handsome pavilion, capable of accommodating an orchestra of one hundred musicians, with a portable extension for seating five hundred choristers, is now in progress of erection, and an extension of the porches. made by flooring over eight thousand feet of the lawn adjoining, will provide a grand dancing hall and auditorium superior to that possessed by any seaside city.

Operatic, oratorio, and promenade concerts and balls instituted on a scale of magnificence never before attempted, and given at stated intervals throughout the season, will add new zest to the happy life of the sojourner at the Cape.

On Saturday June 30th, the festivities commence with a visit of the famous State Fencibles, of Philadelphia, accompanied by full band and drum corps. Dress parade of the Fencibles Saturday evening.

There will be a grand concert in the new pavilion during the afternoon, and at night a hop complimentary to the Fencibles, with a lawn concert alternating.

On Sunday, July 1st, there will be a battalion drill with exhibitions of loading and firing closing with dress parade. A sacred concert in the afternoon, and in the evening a sacred concert by the combined orchestra and military band.

Other attractions have been arranged for every afternoon and evening during the week following, commencing on Monday afternoon with a concert by a grand military band. Although not entirely perfected, the arrangements will likely include a great and novel show of fireworks on the 4th, with concerts and other features.

Excursion tickets to Cape May will be sold on June 29th from Tyrone at $7.65 for the round trip. Special train leaves Tyrone at 12:55 p. m. good to go on that date only, and to return on regular trains, by continuous journey, until July 9th, enabling visitors to remain over to witness the musical and military attractions soon to take place. For particulars apply to nearest ticket agent or to Thos. E. Watt, Passenger Agent W. D., Pittsburg.

Martha Matters.

MARTHA, June 22, 1883.

MR. EDITOR: This little village is in the zenith of its glory at the present season. The verdure clad hills and grass grown pastures present a beautiful picture to the tourist, and as he strolls over the lofty mountains which surround the town like the walls of ancient cities he must be pleased with what his eyes rest upon as all about him is the promise of a bountiful harvest. Especially do the numerous fields owned by Mr. John I. Thompson show what careful culture coupled with favorable weather will do. The grain crop is very large and will yield richly. The wool crop was also unusually good, Mr. Thompson alone received from his sheep about 1400 pounds of wool, which he immediately shipped to the woolen markets.

Miss Jennie Kyle, of Mifflin, a very pleasant young lady, is spending her vacation here, the guest of Mrs. John I. Thompson. Miss Kyle is one of the instructors in the Ladies' Seminary, at Birmingham, Huntingdon county.

Our genial friend and lumber merchant, J. F. Williams, has lately disposed of a great quantity of lumber, railroad ties and pulp wood, and consequently sports around in a new two-seated buggy recently purchased in New York.

We had the pleasure of casting our optics upon the faces of Sheriff Dunkle and D. F. Fortney, Esq., this week. A visit from these gentlemen means business. MARTHA.

—The generator in the telephone exchange office in this place will hereafter be operated by water power instead of by hand, a water motor having been placed in position Thursday to perform this work. The motor is of one half horse power, and runs as smooth as a top. The power is applied by means of a wire running from the switch-board to the motor, which is located in the basement of the building. This is a marked improvement in the service and will result in a great saving of time and labor, enabling the operator to dispose of the rapidly increasing business of the office in a much more expeditious manner.

—The National View Company is still engaged in Bellefonte.

Modern Strawberries.

The Philadelphia Record alludes to a subject which now interests everybody as follows: "There is one strawberry which grows in the country meadows, sweet, wholesome, sugary-sour, delicate in its flavor and wholly delightful. This strawberry plants itself, and propagates itself and continues from generation, a good thing, asking no odds of anybody. It was this strawberry that good old Izaak Walton declared: "Doubtless God could make a better berry, but he never did." There is another strawberry, the huckster's delight, oversized, so that a basket will not hold many; of forced growth, so that its juices are immature and tasteless; soft, spongy, sandy and misshapen. The monster has monopolized our markets. This strawberry is a fraud. It is a strawberry dude. It is a proof that over-cultivation is as disastrous as under-cultivation. For years past the strawberry has been growing in size, price and worthlessness. It is impossible to retrace our steps and go back again to the little, sharp-pointed, deep-red berries that looked when picked as if the tips of a fairy's fingers had been served up for the breakfast of mortal man."

The Church at the "Rock."

The corner stone of this edifice was laid with appropriate ceremonies on Sunday, June 17, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. Revs. Hewitt, of the Episcopal church, and Penepacker, of the M. E. church, were present, the former delivering an address and the latter taking charge of the work of collecting money which he performed in his usual able manner, $177 being collected during the exercises.

Major William F. Reynolds, one of the chief movers in the erection of the church and without whose assistance it would not have been commenced, was also present. He gave the ground upon which the foundation now stands and also $250 in cash. The M. E. congregation at the "Rock," for whose use the building is intended, are duly grateful to Major Reynolds for his generosity.

—The contest for the gold headed cane provided for that purpose by the managers of the Evangelical church festival resulted in favor of Mr. C. G. McMillen, of the Brockerhoff House. The contest brought over $100 into the coffers of the church. The cane, however, is not a very costly piece of workmanship and the honor of winning the contest will be the chief source of gratification to Mr. McMillen. The receipts from the cane contest constituted the larger part of the festival income as the revenues from the sale of ice cream and cake were quite meagre.

—It appears by the Lock Haven papers that the Fourth of July celebration committee of that city are, at this late day, soliciting funds to defray expenses. In Bellefonte all the funds desired were raised months ago and committees appointed for the purpose are already soliciting the necessary cold meats, jellies, cakes, pickles, etc., for the big dinner, and completing arrangements for an enjoyable occasion.

—Crocheted shoes are the most recent fashionable novelty with the ladies and are worn with dresses of any thin, spider-web description. One of Bellefonte's pretty milliners was the first to introduce this delightful novelty, and they bid fair to be universally adopted by stylish ladies. They are jet-black in color and if that isn't a crow shade we fail to know what is.

—Two boys named Smith and Johnson, confined in the jail, escaped from that institution on Sunday, but were pursued and soon captured. We believe they were given slight liberties in the jail yard and took advantage of the opportunity to scale the wall. The chase was lively, the boys being pursued as far as Valentines forge, in the vicinity of which they were captured.

—The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad Company have issued an advertising poster which is peculiarly rich in coloring and happy in design. It is dedicated to the Grand Army of the Republic who are marching over that route to the West. E. St. John, General Ticket and Passenger agent, Chicago, Ill., don't object to having this fact known.

—If the number of goods which Lyon & Co. enumerate in their advertisement in another column is a fair index to the proportions of their stock it must be enormous. The goods also seem to be remarkably cheap and the firm is meeting with a large patronage.

—Bellefonte organizations should go to Milesburg, Pleasant Gap, or Howard to hold their festivals. Here they can make only $25 or $50 in a single evening while in either of the three places mentioned from $100 to $200 is made in the same time.

—The opening exercises of Commencement at State College on Sunday passed off pleasantly. Rev. Dr. William H. Campbell, ex-President or Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N. J., delivered the baccalaureate sermon which was a scholarly production.

—March along High street until you arrive at the entrance of Sechler's store. Step in and buy all the groceries you can carry away.

—An enterprising Lewistown hen, ordinary size, laid 23 eggs out of the sight and knowledge of her owner, sat on them and brought forth 22 chicks. The twenty-third egg contained a dead chick.

—Oh yes, we know all about that. We know that Butler would like to be President of these United States. But he was born too late. Drop him, therefore, as you would a hot potato, and take your market basket to Sechler's store for groceries.

—Francis Speer met with the usual number of adventures while attending the Boys' Branch picnic, but we wont give him away. But what that woman said when he asked for milk was of all things most terrible.

—New stock of lace parasols and sun umbrellas at the Bee Hive. 2t

—S. D. Ray, Esq., says he killed that ten-foot snake encountered recently and the place where the desperate battle took place was on his fertile farm in —— township.

—Swiss and Nainsook embroideries, laces and white goods, new and elegant lines, at the Bee Hive. 2t

—The prices for fruit and produce are reasonably low. Eggs are quoted at 20 cents per dozen, but should be 5 cents lower. Butter is only 12½ cents per pound; it would be wrong to expect farmers to sell this dairy product for any smaller sum. Strawberries are as plenty as can be desired at 12½ cents per box. Cherries are just putting in appearance and will soon be big, plump, red and cheap.

—The great crowds at Harry Teats & Co.'s store are attracted thither by the excellence of the groceries for sale.

—We hope the rumor is true that Bellefonte will have a game of base ball on the Fourth of July.

—Special sale of ladies' muslin underwear, slightly soiled, at a surprising reduction at the Bee Hive. 2t

—Mr. James H. Weaver has succeeded Mr. Austin Iddings as clerk in George Taylor & Co's store at Milesburg.

—A special invitation is extended to all to visit Sechler's grocery store.

—Mr. Albert G. Postlewaite, of Lock Haven, has been appointed controller of the St. Paul and Northern Pacific Railroad Company.

—Are you hungry? Do you feel as if your last and most valued friend has deserted you and left you alone? Do you despair of ever securing what you seek? If so, we point you to the true panacea for all your ills. 'Tis this—buy all the groceries you can consume at Sechler's store, where your wants will be met in a manner not surpassed in Bellefonte.

—The Pennsylvania Railroad will give the public the benefit of the usual excursion rates from the 30th of June until the 5th of July, inclusive.

—Best standard prints, latest styles, just reduced to 6 cents at the Bee Hive. 2t

—Quick sales and small profits are the order of the day at Harry Teats & Co.'s store.

AN ORDINANCE

To Remove and Prevent Nuisances in the Borough of Howard.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the town council of the Borough of Howard, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by authority of the same: That from and after the passage of this Ordinance it shall be unlawful for any person or persons, corporation or corporations, within the said Borough of Howard to wilfully cast, throw, lay or place, or cause to be cast, thrown, laid or placed, any wagon or wagons, carriage or carriages, cart or carts, fence or fences, lumber, wood, stone, ashes, brick, straw, manure, carcass, excrement, filth or any other annoyance whatever, on any pavement, foot-walk, street, lane, alley or road within the said Borough; and any person or persons so offending, and being thereof convicted before the Chief Burgess or any Justice of the Peace, shall forfeit and pay a fine of not less than one dollar, nor more than three dollars, at the discretion of such Burgess or Justice for each and every such offence: Provided that it shall be lawful for any individual or corporation, erecting or causing to be erected any building or structure within the limits of said Borough, during the erection thereof and no longer, to occupy such part of any street, lane, alley or road as may be necessary, but in all cases to leave a sufficient passage for wagons, carriages and carts to pass and repass such building.

SECTION 2. That upon the complaint of any person made in writing to the High Constable of said borough of Howard, it shall be the duty of the said High Constable forthwith to give notice in writing, by personal service, to any person or persons, corporation or corporations, who shall have violated the provisions of the preceding section, to remove within five hours thereafter from the pavement, sidewalk, street, lane, alley or road, in said borough, any wagon or wagons, carriage or carriages, cart or carts, fence or fences, lumber, wood, stone, ashes, brick, straw, manure, carcass, excrement filth or other nuisance; and if the same shall not be removed by such person or persons, corporation or corporations within the period aforesaid, it shall then be the duty of the said High Constable, without any or further authority, to remove the same as a public nuisance.

SECTION 3. Any person or persons, corporation or corporations, violating the provisions of this ordinance, in addition to the penalty prescribed by the first section, shall also be liable to pay any and all costs and expenses incident to the removal by the High Constable of any nuisance as heretofore provided for; and the said High Constable is authorized to recover such costs and expenses as debts of like amount are now by law recovered, by an action or actions, in the name of said Borough. And said High Constable shall account to the Borough Treasurer for any and all money so received by him.

SECTION 4. That all ordinances or parts of ordinances inconsistent with the provisions of this ordinance be and the same are hereby repealed.

Ordained and enacted into an ordinance this 12th day of June, A. D. 1883.

THE LATEST NEWS.

Foreign Flashes.

SUNDERLAND, June 19.—The funerals of a great many of the victims of Saturday's disaster took place to-day. The streets were crowded with sympathetic people, most of whom were dressed in mourning. The blinds of the houses were drawn and the church in which the funeral services were held displayed a black flag at half-mast. One hundred free graves have been prepared in one cemetery for the reception of the bodies of victims, exclusive of those for which parents of children who lost their lives in the disaster will pay. Fifty-four bodies were interred in this cemetery to-day and thirty-one in a smaller cemetery. Large numbers of general subscriptions are arriving in Sunderland from different points, which will pay the funeral expenses of the unfortunate children. The deaths now number 202.

TRADEE, Ireland June 19.—Five men have been committed for trial on the charge of murdering a man named Walsh in Nicy.

LONDON, June 19.—The secretary of the committee to place the bust of Longfellow in Westminister Abbey has presented the American committee five hundred letters from persons of note who subscribe toward the expenses of the bust to be kept in some public institution in New England as a testimonial of the of the high esteem in which Longfellow was held by the best minds in Great Britain.

PARIS, June 19.—La Liberte says the negotiations between France and England in relation to the abolition of capitulations in Tunis have had a satisfactory result, England agreeing to give up the right of asylum in her consulate.

At a meeting of eighteen hundred socialists in Mont Martre, last night, a resolution was past demanding a revision of the constitution.

The Cyclone in Ohio.

STEUBENVILLE, O., June 19.—Last evening at twenty minutes of 6 o'clock a cyclone struck this city, doing a great deal of damage to property in the northern part of the town. The track of the cyclone was from a due westerly course. A number of residences were damaged, and a large orchard was completely uprooted. It appears that when the force of the storm reached the bank of the river it plunged into the water lifting it about one hundred feet, as alleged by reputable eye-witnesses. The damage in the city is estimated at $15,000.

PITTSBURG, June 19.—The Chronicle's Steubenville (Ohio) special says: Hundreds of people visited the scene of the cyclone to-day, and viewed with astonishment the destruction of property in the city. The storm appears to have formed about one mile from here, in Union cemetery, moving east until it reached a high hill overlooking the northerly portion of the city, when it descended with terrific force, damaging and destroying all in its path as it swept across the city, a distance of half a mile, and plunged into the waters of the Ohio, lifting them up in the shap of a waterspout a distance of a hundred feet. To-day photographic views of ruins are being taken of the destruction. The loss is estimated at $12,000 to $15,000. The most remarkable thing is the fact that no one was injured, as the storm passed over a thickly-inhabited portion of the city, and the path swept the finest residences.

State Legislation.

HARRISBURG, June 19.—The legislature again met this evening. The session was short in both branches. In the house Mr. Landis presented a senatorial apportionment bill, giving twenty-seven republican, seventeen democratic and six doubtful districts. Mr. Eccles presented two bills—a congressional and senatorial. The first gives fourteen republican, ten democrats and four doubtful. The second, twenty-eight republican, twenty democratic and two doubtful. Mr. Devinney presented a congressional bill of fifteen republicans to thirteen democrats.

The senate passed a resolution that all per diem pay during the recess be commuted. It was unanimously favored. Both houses adjourned until 11 a. m. to-morrow.

Three Attempts to Kill Himself.

DANVILLE, Pa., June 17.—A case of unrequited affection culminated late last night in the attempted suicide of Henry Knorr, aged 18. He had a misunderstanding with the young lady to whom he was paying attention. He called on her last night while partly intoxicated and, after a disagreement, left. A little while later he shot himself Only one of the three shots fired took effect. The ball penetrated his left breast an inch below the heart. He will probably recover.

Another Bill Vetoed.

HARRISBURG, June 17.—Governor Pattison has vetoed the bill giving the President Judge of Common Pleas Courts power to change the date at which a reduction of taxes collected by County Treasurers for prompt payment shall cease. His reason is that it imposes a duty upon them foreign to their office and requires them to assist in the financial business of the county.

Aid for James Nutt.

UNIONTOWN, June 20.—It has been published that the contributions coming in for the defense of James Nutt are not necessary, as the family are not in a condition to need financial aid. This statement is not correct. When all the claims against Captain Nutt's little property are met there will be nothing left. He had just built a handsome residence out of town, but was struck down before he got it paid for. He left nine children all small except James and Miss Lizzie. James being now in prison, the only natural support of the widowed mother is gone. Here, where such a verdict as that which acquitted Dukes was rendered, it will require able counsel and no small amount of expense to secure for young Nutt the verdict which public sentiment demands. The family are not able to meet this expense, and hence Mrs. Nutt and Miss Lizzie are sending their grateful acknowledgments to all who are forwarding their contributions. These offers of aid come unsolicited, but they are not declined, as the fund will be thankfully appropriated to the object intended. Mullin & Mills, of Bradford, Pa., volunteered $100; J. L. Tobias, of Philadelphia, $50; Mount Savage fire brick company, Keystone Junction, Pa., $100; ten employes in a livery stable, at Dennison, Ohio, $5; Fisher & Hilt, of Baltimore, $50. Dr. P. W. Kohler sends $1 from Baltimore and promises to start a dollar fund to which Henry McKay, L. C. Parker and B. Powell, of St. Paul, Minn., add $1 each. Many others offer aid if needed, but they have not been informed until now that aid is acceptable. The movement to raise a fund for young Nutt's defense will unquestionably meet with a generous public response. By the time the case is put on the trial list there will be a fund sufficient to induce the best legal talent in the country to plead the young avenger's cause.

Harvard vs. Columbia.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 20.—In the eight-oared race between the Harvard and Columbia college teams Harvard won by twelve lengths. Time, 24:45; Columbia 25:55. The course was four miles, straight way. The wind freshened considerably before the start, making a bad, choppy sea. Harvard had the west, Columbia the east course. Harvard, though splashing a trifle, got the best start, and at no time was she headed. At the first half mile Harvard, pulling thirty-six strokes, had headed a half-length at the mile, which was reached in just six minutes, she had a clear length. Both crews pulled in fine form. Harvard gradually increased the lead and dropped to 33 strokes, which she maintained to the finish. At this time Columbia was pulling 39 strokes. The mile and a-half flag waspassed by Harvard in ten minutes. At the two-mile flag the time was 13:05, with a lead of three lengths. Columbia at this point was twenty seconds behind. The race was virtually over here.

Trouble Anticipated

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18.—An associated press dispatch from Wilcox, Arizona, dated to-day, says: It is understood that if the Indian agent at San Carlos does not receive the captured hostiles serious results may be anticipated. The hostiles are now waiting to surrender near the Mexican line, but will not do so unless they are first assured of good treatment at the reservation Runners have already returned to the line with intelligence that there are from one hundred and fifty to one hundred and seventy-five able-bodied warriors yet to be surrendered. A repetition of the occurrences of April 19, 1882, is feared at which time the hostile Apaches came into the reservation and forcibly took out Loco and his followers. The reservation Indians fear the Chirrecahuas and would make a very weak resistance. The Indians fear General Crook and if his judgment prevails all will be well, and otherwise there is still trouble ahead.

The Manly Art in Court.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—Judge Biddle, much to his own surprise, has been elected an honorary member of the Fashionable Sparring and Fencing Club. His election was brought about by the publication of the Judge's words in favor of the art of self-defence, in connection with the Law and Order Society's proceedings to crush out ex-Pugilist Clark's concert saloon. "I think," the Judge said, "that the cultivation of the art is a good thing. If people were more skilled in the use of their arms there would be less temptation to resort to the pistol." The Judge was entirely unaware of the honor that this expression of opinion had brought until the letter notifying him of his elevation to the dignity of a sparrer and fencer was put into his hands.

The club, regarded as one of the most select in the city, has spacious quarters on Chestnut street, fitted up with every sort of contrivance for developing the muscles. This is the club whose athletic sports were interfered with by Mayor King.

No Efforts made to Bail James Nutt.

PITTSBURG, June 18.—A special from Uniontown, Pa., to the Commercial Gazette says: No efforts have yet been made to have young Nutt released on bail. Judge Wilson is holding court in Greene county this week, so that no steps can be taken before his return next week. It is doubtful whether any effort will be made to have bail granted. Counsel for the prosecution have not yet been secured. Contributions are still coming in toward the fund to be used in defending Nutt. Dukes' will, regarding which there is great curiosity, has not yet been filed.

The Levee Convention in Louisiana

BATON ROUGE, June 18.—The levee convention met here to day and was called to order at noon by Governor McEnery. Judge J. M. Howell, of La Fourche, was made permanent chairman. It is years since such a large and thoroughly representative body has assembled in the State. After much discussion a resolution was unanimously adopted that a committee of one from each parish, each ward and each interest represented be appointed by the respective delegations as a general committee on resolutions, to which shall be referred all matters suggested in the Governor's message calling the convention, the report of the levee commission, the report of Mr. Eads and all other subjects introduced in this convention without debate. A committee was then appointed, consisting of about fifty delegates.

Heavy Rains and High Rivers.

St. LOUIS, Mo., June 18.—Advices from Western Missouri and Kansas say that heavy rains the past few days have raised nearly all the rivers and small streams in that section, and the indications are for high water in the Missouri river. The town of Corning, forty miles north of St. Joseph, on the Kansas City, St. Joe and Council Bluffs railroad, and also on the Missouri river, is inundated, and several houses were entirely swept away. About four miles of the railroad is under water. All the railroads in western and central Missouri, excepting the Missouri Pacific, are badly washed, and trains are generally abandoned. It looks as though serious trouble, not only to the railroads, but to all the river towns and bottom land farms, is to result from the present or threatened condition of the rivers.

Three Prisoners Walk out of a Jail.

CLEVELAND, June 17.—Three prisoners escaped from the Millersburg, Ohio, jail last night. The manner of the escape is not positively known, but there are two theories in regard to it. One is that the prisoners were not locked up in their cells as usual last night, and the other is that some outside party secured the keys and unlocked the doors. Nothing was disturbed about the jail. The prisoners evidently came out of the door, and did not unlock the door themselves. The three men were named Lichty, Jerome, and Yost, and were confined under indictments for highway robbery and burglary. The citizens censure the Sheriff for his negligence.

A Blessing.

The pain in all his joints became intense; fever, with its deteriorating effects, was now added, and he became rapidly reduced to the semblance of a skeleton, and his sufferings were of such indescribable character that those who most loved him sometimes thought it would be better if he were called away. At this time, physicians, well-known in this city (Pittsburgh), informed his parents that he was in imminent danger of total Paralysis, and directly afterward they announced to his sorrowful mother that they could give no hopes of his recovery. At this juncture the use of Peruna was commenced, and in six weeks Mr. William Curtis was well and at work. Read page 23 of Dr. Hartman's "Ills of Life;" get it from your druggist.

Miss Livingstone Sued by Her Lawyer.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The $75,000 breach of promise suit of Miss Mary Alice Almont Livingstone against Henry Fleming has been settled by the plaintiff for $15,000. Her counsel, M. E. Sawyer, wanted $5,000 for his services, but she only offered him $2,500, and he has begun suit against her for his compensation.

NERVELESS MEN.—Is there under the face of heaven a more pitiful sight than a man who has lost nerve power and vim? And why is the sad spectacle so common? Because diseases of the kidneys, bladder, liver and urinary organs are so prevalent. There is really no need of it either. Hunt's Remedy, the great kidney and liver medicine, is a positive cure for even the worst maladies of this class Many a man who has lost nerve, vigor, manhood, energy — everything that makes life worth living—has been quickly and fully restored by Hunt's Remedy.

—Three boys jumped into a wagon at Johnstown on Tuesday morning, June 19, unknown to the driver. As the wagon crossed the railroad track an engine struck it, killing one boy and severely injuring another. In stealing a ride the boy met his death.

—The Water street exposure of the Arcade building in which Valentines Store Company, "Limited," is now located, has been appropriately lettered. If general attractiveness will conduce to the success of a business the establishment in question seems to be fully up to the standard.

—An embryo prize fight created a sensation on Allegheny street on Monday, June 18. The participants fled on the approach of an officer of the law. One of the pugnacious individuals was a white man and the other a full blooded son of Africa. Spectators aver that it was impossible to decide which of the pugilists came off victorious.

—A candidate for engineer at the Water Works must be able to square a circle, tell why the square of the hypothenuse of a right-angled triangle is equal to the sum of the squares of its base and perpendicular, demonstrate all the propositions of Euclid and understand fully the theory of differential calculus. None others need apply.

—Mr. Thomas Shaughensey, the efficient street commissioner, has graded Water street, south of High, in first class style, making it quite a pleasant and easy road to travel over instead of the very disagreeable thoroughfare which it formerly was at that point. He seems to direct his efforts to the right points and in the proper way. There is no waste force in the make-up of Street Commissioner Shaughensey.

—A meeting of the committee of the Pennsylvania Reserve Association was held in Philadelphia last week to consider the subject of the annual reunion this year. The place (Bellefonte) has already been decided upon, but the committee failed to arrive at a definite conclusion regarding the time and some other minor arrangements. Another meeting will be held this week when it is expected all the arrangements will be completed.

—The Johnstown and the Altoona base ball nines met on Saturday, June 16, and if the Altoona Tribune gives a correct account of the game the Johnstowners everlastingly disgraced themselves while the Altoona nine excelled all former efforts in the brilliancy of their movements on the diamond field. Owing to the unnecessary delays on the part of the Johnstowners the game was prolonged until rain interrupted proceedings.

—The Boys' Branch picnic on Tuesday of last week was quite a successful gathering. The sack races were the source of much amusement, the participants in the races showing that they were quite skillful in getting over the ground inside of a sack. Each boy met with one or more falls and would sometimes roll instead of walk the remaining distance. The balloon ascension was not a success, as the air-ship bursted before it was fully inflated.

THE BOROUGH FATHERS.

A Lively Meeting of Council on Monday Night, June 18—Resignation of Engineer Bateman.

It was eight o'clock or after when Council was called to order on Monday night of last week, and that only after an ante-room discussion. The meeting was unusually well attended, President Ardell occupying the chair, and Messrs. Crider, Brown, Walkey, Ceadars, Bartley, Shortlidge and McCafferty looking happy and satisfied in their respective places.

The minutes were read and approved without amendment and the members of the several committees devoted themselves to the inspection and signing of bills until the President called for verbal communications to Council.

Mr. William Hillibish, who was present as a representative of the Logan Hose Company, asked for additional appropriation from Council. Heretofore $100 per annum has been appropriated and any sum exceeding that amount will be accepted. This petition was afterward considered by Council and placed in the hands of the Fire and Police committee for investigation, the members of that committee being instructed to confer with the representatives of the Logan Hose Company to learn the amount required. Mr. Hillibish also acquainted Council with the fact that it is necessary to go as far as Spring street for supplies of water for the fire company and requested Council to remedy this inconvenience.

Reports from committees were called for and the Street committee, through Mr. Crider, reported that new planks had been laid on the bridge across the race at High street and that Mr. Dunkle, the contractor for abutments of Spring creek bridge, is now engaged in taking out stone for that purpose.

The Water committee, through Chairman Shortlidge, reported that borough engineer, D. M. Butts, had prepared quite an elaborate calculation regarding the different heights in the town with relation to that of the reservoir, that plainly showed that the cause for deficiency of water on some of the higher parts of town exist at the Diamond where, for some reason, the flow is obstructed. The reservoir is not kept full enough which causes injury to the cement, the report of the committee giving actual measurement of the height of water made on several successive days. The chairman was proceeding to give some valuable facts and figures in regard to the amount of coal consumed at water works and to illustrate that proper care would decrease the amount consumed, when Engineer Bateman, who was present, arose and offered his resignation, requesting that it be accepted at once.

This proved to be quite surprising to Council and silence reigned for the space of 25 seconds, when President Ardell assured Mr. Bateman that his resignation would be acted upon at the proper time.

The Chairman of the Water Committee then continued his report, showing that the boilers were in bad condition, the council engaging in general discussion about boilers in general and the Water Works boiler in particular.

Mr. Bartley, in behalf of the Fire and Police committee, reported that the roof of Undine hose house had been repaired and no further complaint regarding it had been received.

The Market committee reported $3.65 market fees.

Mr. Brown, chairman of Finance committee, reported that a new form of bond had been prepared, and moved in regard to certain bonds falling due and now bearing 6 per cent. interest, that the old bonds at 6 per cent. be cancelled, and new bonds bearing 5 per cent. be issued payable in five years and redeemable after one year at the pleasure of council Motion carried.

The special committee on appropriations reported the following liberal appropriations to different departments of work for the ensuing year: Water committee, $2500; Street, $5750; Fire and Police, $1000; Market, $25; Nuisance, $15; Finance, $665; Interest account, $8300.

The President asked the momentous question regarding the action to be taken by council in reference to Mr. Bateman's resignation. Mr. Tate seconded by Mr. Crider, moved that it be accepted. The vote seemed to be almost evenly divided, but when the yeas and nays were called all but one or two voted in favor of accepting it. A motion was carried that the Water Committee be instructed to employ an engineer temporarily until a man can be secured to fill that position permanently. Mr. Tate pleaded by all the council hold dear to secure a man this time in whom implicit confidence can be placed. Council adjourned.

—Mid-summer is almost here.

Death of David M. Wagner.

On Tuesday morning, the 19th instant, at 3 o'clock the death of David M. Wagner occurred at his residence on High street in this place after a long illness, from which deceased convalesced several times, but which resulted in his death at the time above mentioned.

Mr. Wagner was 62 years of age in September last. He was born in Lebanon county, this State, and at an early age came to this county, where he learned the miller's trade in Spring Mills. When he came to Bellefonte he entered into partnership with William A. Thomas, in the general merchandize trade, their business establishment being located in the old warehouse in the rear of Gerberich, Hale & Co's mill. He afterwards engaged in business for himself which he carried on for many years in this place.

Mr. Wagner married Miss Alvira Johnson, six children being the result of the union. The oldest, the wife of Gen. James Brisben, arrived in town on Monday, about nine hours before the death of her father. He was unconscious and died without recognizing her. The second daughter is the wife of Mr. John Harris, proprietor of the drug store on South Allegheny street. Mrs. Lydia A. Holliday, who lives at her mother's home in this place, is the third daughter. Mr. Winfield Wagner, the fourth child and first son, also resides at home. Mrs. Jack McLlellan, of Altoona, is the fourth daughter. The last and youngest was a boy who died at the age of nine years.

The funeral services were held at his late residence on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

—Rev. W. J. Barnett, pastor of the colored Shiloh Baptist church, Williamsport, preached in the Y. M. C. A. hall on Wednesday evening of last week. Rev. Barnett has quite an eventful history. He is the son of an African chief, and his early years were spent in that benighted country. His father was at the head of a powerful tribe called the Timonys, but died when Rev. Barnett was still a young man. The son became converted through the missionaries who visited that part of the country in which he was brought up. He then became a pilot on one of the great rivers of Africa. Once after he had piloted a ship safely to the sea, he was drugged by the officers who intended selling him into slavery. When they approached Liverpool the mate and captain had a fall out. The former told Barnett that the captain intended selling him as a slave at New Orleans. He advised him to skip at the first opportunity. At Liverpool he was sent on land for some milk. He fled to London where he received a 4-years schooling, then came to America, and commenced preaching here during the rebellion.

That Black Snake.

While it is quite certain that A. O. Furst, Esq., excels as an angler we are in some doubt regarding his experience with that enormous snake and are inclined to believe that S. D. Ray, Esq., was the person who really encountered it.

At the time he came across the snake he was wandering through the timberland on top of the point near the toll-gate. The snake lay directly across his path and Mr. Ray hesitated to advance any further, the snake refusing to retreat, doubtless claiming possession to be nine-tenths of the law in his favor. But the attorney was resolved to proceed. A fee of $10 and a warm supper awaited him at the end of his journey and he decided to run past the snake at the risk of his life. He did so, without looking back to see if the snake was in pursuit. He was greatly fatigued, which caused inquiry regarding his health, when he gave the story as related above and described the dimensions of the snake in the manner heretofore attributed to A. O. Furst, Esq.

A Missionary's Experience.

Rev. Crittenden returned home last weed after an absence of about two weeks in the upper Pine Creek and Kettle Creek regions. In communication with him he said, if any one believing that all Christian work should be done on the "straitest sect" plan had been with him he could have seen some splendid opportunities for the application of a more excellent way commended by St. Paul to the church at Corinth.

He states that in his travels he met some very generous-hearted people, and at one appointment a singularly warm reception. Some boys stealing into the school before the meeting and firing the stove filled with wood made things altogether too hot for a warm summer evening; nevertheless the object of his meeting was successfully accomplished.

A SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

A New and Most Important Theory on One of the Most Vital Questions of the Day.

If anyone had informed Queen Elizabeth in her palmiest days that she could have been seated in her palace in London and conversed with Sir Walter Raleigh in his North Carolina home; receiving a reply from him within an hour's time, she would have declared it to be a miracle. And yet, had they lived in the present day, this apparent miracle would most readily have been witnessed and not seem at all strange or unnatural. The truth is, new principles are coming into existence, and the operation of many laws unknown in the past is being fully understood in the present. In no way does this fact come more forcibly to the mind than in the care and treatment of the human body. Millions of people have died in past ages from some insignificant or easily controlled cause which is thoroughly understood now and readily handled. Consumption during the entire past has been considered an incurable disease. And yet it is demonstrated that it has been and can be cured, even after it has had a long run. Dr. Felix Oswald has just contributed a notable article on this subject to the Popular Science Monthly. He regards consumption as pulmonary scrofula. The impurities of the blood produce a constant irritation in the lungs, thus destroying their delicate tissues and causing death. His theory shows conclusively that consumption is a blood disease. It has its origin primarily in a deranged condition of the kidneys or liver, the only two organs of the body, aside from the lungs, that purify the blood. When the kidneys or liver are diseased they are in a sore or lacerated state which communicates poison to every ounce of blood that passes through them. This poisonous blood circulates through the system and comes to the lungs, where the poison is deposited, causing decomposition in the finely formed cells of the lungs. Any diseased part of the body has contaminating power, and yet the blood, which is the life of the system, is brought into direct contact with these poisoned organs, thus carrying contagion to all parts of the body. Bishop Jesse T. Peck, D. D., L. L. D., whose death has been so regretted, is reported to have died of pneumonia, which medical authorities affirm indicates a diseased condition of the kidneys. It is well known, moreover, that for several years he has been the victim of severe kidney trouble, and the pneumonia which finally terminated his life was only the last result of the previous blood poisoning. The deadly matter which is left in the lungs by the impure blood clogs up and finally chokes the patient. When this is accomplished rapidly it is called pneumonia or quick consumption, but in any event it is the result of impure blood, caused by diseased kidneys and liver.

These are facts of science, and vouched for by all the leading physicians of the day. They show the desirability—nay, the necessity, of keeping these most important organs in perfect condition, not only to insure health, but also to escape death. It has been fully shown, to the satisfaction of nearly every unprejudiced mind, that Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure is the only known remedy that can cure and keep in health the great blood-purifying organs of the body. It acts directly upon these members, healing all ulcers which may have formed in them and placing them in a condition to purify and not poison the blood. This is no idle statement or false theory. Mr. W. C. Beach, foreman of the Buffalo, N. Y., Rubber Type Foundry, was given up to die by both physicians and friends. For four years he had a terrible cough, accompanied by night sweats, chills, and all the well known symptoms. He spent a season south and found no relief. He says: "I finally concluded to try Warner's Safe Cure and in three months I gained twenty pounds, recovered my lost energy and my health was fully restored." The list could be prolonged indefinitely but enough has been said to prove to every sufferer from pulmonic troubles, that there is no reason to be discouraged in the least, and that health can be restored.

—Our very learned and eloquent friend, A. O. Furst, Esq., recently engaged in the gentlemanly sport of angling for trout and demonstrated that he is as expert in capturing the speckled beauties as in the pursuit of legal practice. He caught such an immense trout that not even its tail would go into his capacious fish basket and he adopted the expedient of strapping it on the outside of that appendage a la an umbrella on a trunk. Thus equipped, he waltzed through the thronged thoroughfares of the town with as consequential an air as was ever assumed by a veteran fisherman, the handsome inhabitant of the gurgling waters attracting much admiration. Nor was the gentleman's experience confined to the capture of trout. He avers that he encountered the largest snake ever seen by mortal man in this region; that it was easily ten feet in length and in circumference was equal to his own lower limbs, but as the listeners glanced at the members mentioned they did not seem to be impressed with a very exalted idea of the circumference of his snakeship, which it is supposed vanished before our hero could kill it.

—Heavy rains have increased the volume of water in the Susquehanna river to the proportions of a high flood, and if any of the logs fail to arrive at their destination it will be for other causes than insufficient water.

Base Ball.

A game of base ball was played on Tuesday, the 19th, by the participants in the Boys' Branch picnic. The opposing nines were made up as follows: Washington Rees, Charles Hughes, Harry William-, Harvey Miller, Will Cook, Will Derstine, Walter Lembkey, Will Garman and Charley Powell composed one nine; and Harry Green, Quin Daniels, Frank Lukenbach, Frank VanOrmer, Claire Roberts, Frank Yohey, Will Brew, Charley Crider and Fred Smith composed the other. Judging by the composition of the respective nines it would seem that the latter would come off victorious, but the result was quite the opposite. Five innings were played with a score of 12 to 8 in favor of Washington Rees' nine, the members of which were much lighter and younger. They seem to have won their victory by superior playing.

It Will Cost You Nothing

to get from Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard Street, Philadelphia, an honest opinion in your case, if you are suffering from any chronic disease, as consumption, catarrh, neuralgia, rheumatism or nervous irritability and weakness. They are making wonderful cures with their new Compound Oxygen Treatment. Write to them and give a clear statement of your case. They will answer promptly as to the chances of a cure. They make no charge for consultation. If, however, you do not wish to consult them at present, drop a postal card, asking for their Treatise on Compound Oxygen, in which you will find a history of its discovery, nature and action and a large number of reports of difficult and desperate cases which they have treated successfully. It will be sent free.

—A colored man named George Washington fell out of a garret window in Kohlbecker's Central City hotel, on Monday night of last week, descending a distance of twenty-five feet to the ground and, strange to relate, was not much injured. The same individual was so unfortunate as to be struck by an engine while reposing peacefully on the railroad near McCoy & Linn's wire-works a year or more ago, two ribs being broken on the last mentioned occasion. He is evidently endowed with more than the ordinary number of lives.

—The remains of Doctor William Campbell arrived in Altoona from Grand Rapids, Mich., on the day express, Tuesday, the 19th, the Messrs. Campbell Bros., of Altoona, being near relatives of the deceased. The funeral occurred at 2 p. m. the next day from the residence of J. M. Campbell, 1411 Eighth avenue, that city. The deceased has numerous relatives in this county.

Hurrah for the Fourth of July!

How does Lock Haven like this item of news from the Altoona Tribune? "The Mountain City band will accompany the Huntingdon steam fire engine company No. 1 to Bellefonte on July 4. Engagements are looming up from all parts of the country for this band, which is rapidly acquiring a great reputation."

—Postmasters are now required to keep letters only seven days before sending them to the dead letter office, instead of thirty days as heretofore.

Those who expect to make donations will confer a favor by letting a large proportion of such donations consist of meat.

—Mr. John Dubois, the famous Lumberman of DeBois City, Clearfield county, has filed a claim against the New York and Brooklyn Bridge Company for infringing upon his patent floating coffer dam. The patent was used in sinking the several piers, and, if Mr. Dubois can make his cause good, it will bring from $80,000 to $100,000 into his pockets.

—In reply to a question the Post-office Department at Washington has decided that all written or printed matter produced by type-writers or other machines of that character is first-class mail matter, and full letter postage must be paid upon it. Of late a quantity of legal matter produced by type-writers has been offered at third-class rates, and the inquiry was made at Washington, as postmasters disagreed on the rules on this subject.

—Our farmers need to exercise a little care in handling phosphates. An exchange says that it is becoming quite generally known that the common fertilizer phosphate is a very dangerous article to handle by any one suffering from chapped or sore hands. It is partially composed of blood and bones of dead animals, which have come to their death by disease, and if it accidentally comes in contact with a flesh wound, may result in a severe case of bloodpoisoning.

—Mr. James Mahaffey, of Howard, died on Saturday last after quite a long illness. He was postmaster of Howard for a period of 20 years. His wife is still living, the remaining members of his family now surviving consisting of two daughters and a son, all of whom have reached ages of maturity. He was about 70 years of age. He was widely known and greatly respected and his death will be a source of great regret to all. The funeral took place at 11 o'clock on Wednesday morning, and was very large.

A Night of Music.

Thursday evening was the time announced for the first of two concerts to be given by Mrs. John G. Love and an able corps of assistants, including the leading musicians of Bellefonte. The weather was all that could be desired, but the audience was not as large as was expected. The merits of the entertainment without reference to the object should have attracted a more general attendance.

The floral decorations, arranged in tasteful clusters around the stage though not profuse, were exceedingly elegant. Amid rare exotics and blossoming wildwood gems the concert began with a grand burst of music from the Bellefonte orchestra. This was followed by a full chorus of 20 or 30 voices in Hatton's composition "The Belfry Tower." The choristers presented a fine appearance on the stage, the ladies, arrayed in white, with here and there a harmonious bit of color, occupying positions in front with the gentlemen in the rear. Their voices blended in perfect accord.

The overture, "William Tell," an instrumental quartette by Schmidt, was skillfully executed, but was the least bit "heavy" to a popular audience.

The tableau and chorus "Flag of the Free," was a triumph of artistic skill. The singers were arranged one above another in rows of five each and seven deep, the older ones above and the younger below, all posed very gracefully, the effect, which was heightened by the color of the ladies' drapery, was an exact imitation of that glorious emblem of enthusiasm, "the star spangled banner."

"Home, Sweet Home," an instrumental composition by Thalberg was skillfully executed by Mrs. Love and Miss Emily Valentine.

Miss Victorine Lyon sang a pretty solo entitled "Love's Joy." The lady has a most pleasing voice and sang even more brilliantly than usual.

"Hokey Pokee," a song, was rendered in the cutest possible style by three little girls, Katie Furey, Lona Williams and Maud Harper.

"The Swallows' Farewell," was sung by Misses Sallie McGinley and Mary Bradley. It was specially remarked that the two ladies' voices harmonized perfectly. This concluded the first part.

After the orchestra had given another selection in its effective style the audience was treated to a genuine surprise. Mrs. Dr. Russ, of St. Mary's, who is now a guest at the residence of Mrs. Brockerhoff, electrified the audience by her brilliant rendering of a song entitled, "Dreams." She was loudly applauded and for an encore sang "The Cornet," in which that instrument was imitated to perfection. The lady's voice is powerful and her execution was faultless.

"The Hunting Eyes Galop," an instrumental quartette, was followed by a song and tableau entitled "Darby and Joan," which was at once cute and pathetic. Cute because the Joan was little Emma Aikens and the the Darby was Walter Lemkey, each attired in a manner that made them look ancient in years if not in figure. Pathetic because the tremulous voice and beseeching gesture of Joan were admirably personated.

The vocal quartette "Great day in de morning," was given by Miss Chestie Krape and Messrs. Eddy, Orbison and Bradley. Mr. Lemuel Bierly, of Milesburg, a master of the violin, gave a solo on that instrument which was highly appreciated.

Then that most excellent of Bellefonte vocalists, Mr. Evan Blanchard, sang "The Scout," by Campana. We have never heard a more pleasant voice than he possesses. Of course, he was loudly applauded and repeated one verse.

"Galop de Concert," instrumental, and a grand chorus, "When the morning, Freshly Breaking," ended an entertainment which was the finest exhibition of local talent ever given in this place.

A Concert which Afforded a Refreshing and Pleasant Variety.

Again a smaller audience than was expected greeted Mrs. Love and the other musicians who gave the second concert announced for Friday night, but again the musical programme was well and faithfully carried out with one or two especially fine additions. What particularly won our admiration were the two vocal solos rendered by that accomplished and elegant vocalist Mrs. Dr. Russ, of St. Marys. We don't know the titles of the two songs she sang, but they were rendered in a manner that sent the audience into transports of delight.

In the song, "The Little Match Girl," little Grace Laird appeared as that character. She sang and acted with entire freedom and was encored.

The second part was all very attractive, "The Council of Mice" being an illustration of "When the cat's away the mice will play." Emma Aikens sang "Come in and Shut the Gate" very strikingly and acted the sentiment perfectly. She was re-called. The finest piano recital given on either night was the "Chasse Infernal" by Mrs. Love and Miss Emily Valentine.

A part of the evening's exercises not on the programme was enacted by Messrs. Walter Bayard and J. Willard Miller. Walter appeared on the stage and invited Mr. Miller to come forward and join him and receive a gold watch purchased by the latter's friends as a token of regard. He came upon the stage and received the watch, responding in appropriate words, his remarks showing that he was much surprised and highly pleased with the appropriate gift.

Col. Hastings' Heavy Contract.

A poster hanging in the window of the post office announces with a great flourish of trumpets, the exercises to take place at Howard on the Fourth of July. They will be immensely entertaining and decidedly wonderful considering the fact that, according to the poster every separate performance will be given by our talented friend, Col. Dan Hastings. We don't happen to have a copy of the poster in our possession, but it reads something like this: "Camp fire, procession, dress parade, music, patriotic songs, balloon ascension, fire works, speeches, soldiers' dinner, reading Declaration of Independence and oration by Col. Dan Hastings." We are aware that he is an unusually capable individual, especially so since he became adjutant general, but we are sure that no other man in the United States or England would undertake so much. Of course, the camp fire will blaze brightly; the procession will be six feet long; the dress parade will show off the Colonel's go-to-meeting clothes; the music will be (well, we never heard the Colonel sing); then there will be patriotic songs by the adjutant general; a balloon ascension (look out, Colonel, how you alight, that's the worst part of it); in the fire works he will probably excel Prof. Jackson; the speeches will probably be pitched in one vein and the oration in another, but perhaps some of the local orators will aid in these; he is abundantly able to eat the soldiers' dinner; but he should certainly decline to read all of the Declaration as the oration will require enough effort and be an equally excellent production. Truly, the Colonel will have a lively Fourth and we wish him great success.

The Fourth of July Demonstration.

In view of the fact that the coming Fourth of July celebration in Bellefonte will surpass all former demonstrations of a similar nature a word about it may be considered appropriate.

Let all the business houses within the borough be closed. Five fire companies, the members of which will be accompanied by their friends, have promised to come to Bellefonte to have a good time. It will not seem appropriate to them to see the people among whom they come deeply engaged in their private business affairs. It will be the part of politeness and hospitality to assist in entertaining our guests and to the best of our ability render their presence pleasant. The parade and the music from the several bands will give life and vivacity to the occasion. The picnic dinner in the woods will be heartily enjoyed and possibly fireworks in the evening will prolong the interest throughout the entire day.

Then put away your work on the day we celebrate. Cook enough to have a supply of cold victuals on the Fourth and devote the time to a genuine, hearty celebration.

A Contractor's Operations.

Mr. H. C. Holter, contractor, of Howard, was in town on Saturday and as usual was busy, having just completed one contract and was eager to begin work on another. During 45 working days he with three assistants have been engaged upon the new mill for P. B. Crider & Son at Snow Shoe which was just completed and is now running full blast. It reflects great credit upon his abilities as a contractor. The firm have 5,000,000 feet of logs to be worked up in this mill.

His next undertaking will be the erection of a large barn for Mr. Christian Holter in Liberty township. He also has contracted to erect two new mills, one near Unionville and the other at Tower Hill, about eight miles back of Howard on the Allegheny Mountains. It is fair to presume that Mr. Holter, under such a press of business engagements, is being richly remunerated.

—The reign of the cart wheel hat is not yet over. We saw a lady enter the depot last week wearing one of enormous size—in fact, the rim almost touched on both sides of the door, and she was obliged to walk pretty straight to get through without colliding.

The General Secretaryship.

The Board of Managers of the Y. M. C. A. held an adjourned meeting on Friday in the office of Beaver & Gephart for the purpose of choosing a temporary successor to the retiring General Secretary, J. Willard Miller, until a man can be secured to fill the position permanently. Several names were mentioned in connection with the position, that of James Hughes, son of Rev. James P. Hughes, of this place, receiving most favorable consideration among those who were thought to be available, and on motion the position was tendered to him. Although he is not at home at present his friends here know of no previously formed engagements that will prevent him accepting it.

The choice is an excellent one, as Mr. Hughes has always been known to be one of the most sensible and sedate young men of this place. He has just completed his second year at Princeton College. His age is about nineteen. In making the selection the Board has been guided by a consideration of what is due the contributing members of the Association as well as its spiritual, mental and physical requirements and Mr. H. is in all probability the best selection that could have been made. The Board will use its utmost endeavors to secure a young man to fill the position permanently at the first possible opportunity.

Centre County Land Warrants.

From the Harrisburg Patriot we learn that a special meeting of the board of public property, the members of which are Secretary Africa, Secretary Stenger and Attorney General Cassidy, had a meeting in that city on Wednesday morning, June 20, to hear the cases of the applications of Edgar Holt and S. H. Holt, of Snow Shoe, this county, for land warrants for vacant land on the waters of Beech Creek, Centre county. Caveats had been filed against the issuance of said warrants by the Snow Shoe land and improvement company, claiming that the land in question was not vacant but was covered by warrants and surveys belonging to them. The parties were represented by counsel, Hon. William A. Wallace and Hon. C. T. Alexander appearing for the applicants and General William H. Blair as counsel for the caveators. The counsel for the caveators applied for a continuance of the case until July 19, on the ground that Secretary Stenger was absent, and they refused to go on without a full board. This objection being raised, Secretary Africa and Attorney General Cassidy continued the case as above stated.

The "Marriage Association."

On Saturday an interesting scene was enacted, Lewis Shaffer, Clement Dale, James Mateer and J. W. Miller being the participants. About a year ago they entered into an agreement that the first one to be married should recieve a present of a $5 gold piece from each of the others, the second entering into the marriage relation to receive a similar gift from the two remaining in single blessedness, and so on. J. W. Miller did not then reveal the fact that the interesting event was so near for him and the four gentlemen used their best efforts to win the $5 gold pieces as soon as possible, Mr. Miller reaching the goal first. The members of the "marriage association" remembered their pledges and redeemed them on Saturday morning, Clement Dale, Esq., making the presentation speech.

What Gen. Beaver Said.

The Altoona Tribune says that General James A. Beaver was in Pittsburg Wednesday evening. He had nothing to say about politics, but seemed to be filled with thoughts of Bellefonte, his home. This town he expects to become an important railroad and mineral center in the near future. His attention was called to an utterance recently made by a local member of the Grand Army of the Republic to the effect that that organization should be turned into a political organization, and he stated that whoever advanced such an idea could not be familiar with the principles of the organization, which were strictly non-partisan.

Philipsburg Pickings.

Collated and condensed from the Journal:

Mr. James P. Hale was married on the evening of the 5th to Miss Tillie Wertz, of Philipsburg, the ceremony taking place at Osceola.

Rev. W. O. Wright, of Milesburg, has accepted the pastorate of the Presbyterian church at Kylertown and Morrisdale Mines.

The races of the Philipsburg Driving Park Association will begin on the 4th of July and continue through the 5th and 6th.

Rev. William Laurie, of this place, visited Philipsburg on Wednesday, the 20th.

—Several weddings are "indicated" for the very near future.

Personal Pencilings.

J. L. Spangler, Esq., is improving the interior of his office with handsome paper.

Mr. John Harter, of Georges Valley, is making an extended tour through the West.

Prof. Jordan and wife, of State College, returned from a visit to Philadelphia on Wednesday.

Mr. Shuman Pletcher, one of Howard's enterprising citizens, spent a few hours in town on Monday morning.

The Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin accuses Col. D. H. Hastings of a desire to twist the tail of the British lion.

Mr. Walter Wood and sister, of Hollidaysburg, are attending the commencement exercises at Pennsylvania State College.

Ira C. Mitchell, Esq., at one time a prominent lawyer in this place, is industriously pursuing his professional duties in Lock Haven.

Rev. J. H. Orbison preached in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning. We have heard his sermon spoken of as a very fine production.

Mr. W. V. Emory of the Bellefonte Nail Works, accompanied by his wife, recently visited at Mr. Emory's boyhood home in Wellsboro, Tioga county.

Mr. C. A. Lindsey, of Houtzdale, joined his wife in this place on Saturday evening, spending Sunday in town. They both departed for home Monday morning.

Mr. M. W. McClintick, formerly of Clinton county and now farming on the Curtin farm near Roland, is the leader of the Eagle Cornet Band. It renders fine music under his leadership.

Mr. Thomas Newell and wife, of Clearfield, arrived in Bellefonte last week to remain permanently. Mr. Newell has accepted a position with Mr. John Bartruff at the carriage manufactory.

Rev. John Donahue, a former pastor of the Bellefonte M. E. church and now located at Ashland, Pa., attended the commencement exercises of Dickinson Seminary at Williamsport.

Rev. George Penepacker, of the M. E. church will depart this week for a tour through the West to be absent about a month. He has made arrangements to have his pulpit supplied during his absence.

Mrs. Dr. Russ was present with the choir in the Episcopal church on Sunday evening rendering a sacred solo and also singing in a quartette in which Miss Bradley and Messrs. Harris and Bradley sang the other parts.

Rev. S. E. Furst, pastor of the Lutheran church, departed on his vacation trip on Monday and will be away until the last Sunday in July. The church will be closed during his absence, the congregation also taking advantage of a vacation.

Mr. Wm. T. Leathers, of Mt. Eagle, tarried with us a few minutes on Saturday. Mr. Leathers will soon receive from the Farmers' Insurance Company the amount due on his house which was destroyed by fire in April last, and hopes to be domiciled in a new residence before snow flies.

Dr. R. L. Dartt and family, of this place, departed on Friday morning for Wellsboro, Tioga county, where they expect to remain about one week, the Doctor's nearest relatives being prominent residents of Tioga county. Dr. Van Fleet, of Williamsport, will attend to Dr. Dartt's extensive practice during his absence.

—We were exceedingly pained to learn on Monday that it was necessary to remove a well-known colored woman of this place, named Mrs. Sarah Williams, to the insane asylum. She has had considerable trouble, which brought on the insanity with which she is now afflicted. She has worked in many of the best families in Bellefonte and her condition as well as that of her afflicted son will elicit sympathy. We remember her as an unusually cheerful and capable workwoman, despite her difficulties, and are sorry to learn of her apparently hopeless insanity.

A Birthday Celebration.

Last Saturday was Mr. Aaron Goldsmith's birthday. Mr. G. is one of the affable and prosperous proprietors of the Bee Hive stores. We don't pretend to say how old he is; but Aaron says the figures are 21. It is quite certain that he is that old.

It is just such pleasant gentlemen as Mr. Goldsmith who deserve a great many birthdays and we hope he will live to celebrate about 79 more of them. It's so nice to be 100 years old, you know!

—The rite of communion will be administered in both the Presbyterian and Episcopal churches next Sunday morning.

Stormstown Correspondence.

STORMSTOWN, June 22, 1883.

MR. EDITOR: A land turtle was picked up near Tow Hill ore mines a few days ago which contained the letters M. D. and date 1838. We cannot say whether the four-legged bird was that old or not, but the letters looked as if they had been rubbed over many a stone.

Miss Kate Brindle, the famous cook of the Brindle House this place, has been very ill with chills and fever for about two weeks past, but we are glad to say she is again on the mend.

On last Sunday a free fight occurred near this place in which about a half-dozen fellows took part. The best proof of the fact that they all participated is that each one carries about with him a memento of the occurrence in the shape of a black eye. It is said they used razors and butcher knives. To add to the aggravating occurrence, a couple of drunken men made the entire day disagreeable by shouting at the top of their voices, disturbing the peace of mind of those who desire to keep the day sacred. If the occurrence is repeated the young miscreants will be afforded opportunity to spend lodging in another way than for beer or whiskey. It is a shame for those who pretend to have any respect for themselves to spend the Sabbath in this way.

EYE WITNESS.

—Arrangements have been made for the next annual exhibition of the State fair in Philadelphia. Thirty acres of ground have been secured at Broad street and Germantown junctions, a lease being made for ten years from Mr. Weightman, of the firm of Powers & Weightman. The officers will immediately fence in the ground and rapidly put up substantial buildings. For exhibits a building 1,000 feet long and 75 feet wide will be erected, besides stalls for cattle, sheep, horses, swine and poultry and other sheds. The premium list this year will be very liberal.

—The funeral services over the remains of the late David M. Wagner at 4 o'clock on Thursday afternoon attracted together one of the largest concourses of people that ever assembled on a similar occasion in Bellefonte. Revs. Penepacker and Hewitt officiated, the former preaching a sermon of remarkable power and eloquence. The casket was quite elegant, a floral wreath being placed on top. It was borne from the house by the side entrance, the mourners and attendants departing through the street entrance. The attendance at Union cemetery was also large.

—Mine Host C. G. McMillen, of the Brockerhoff House, will again supply the Alumni dinner at State College to-day at 12 o'clock. The same gentleman catered very successfully to the same association last year though then too ill to give it his personal supervision. He hopes to make it yet more successful on this occasion.

Death of an Aged Lady.

On Friday morning at four o'clock an aged lady named Jane Hunter died at the residence of her nephew, George H. Nicely, on Reservoir hill back of Logan street. She was 79 years of age and had been a resident of this county a large part of her life. The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

—The report of the firecracker is not heard in the land.
